Loyola's Campus

is all of Chicago

The 1959 Loyolan has two ends to fulfill, two stories to tell. First is the Chicago story, the biography of a city. Second is the Loyola story, the account of what has come to be an important part of that city.

Birthplace of the atomic age, world renowned as a commerce and industry center, Chicago has become the core of encompassing human activity. World leader in air, rail, highway, and passenger transportation, Chicago's ideals, energy, and growth have truly earned it the name of great.

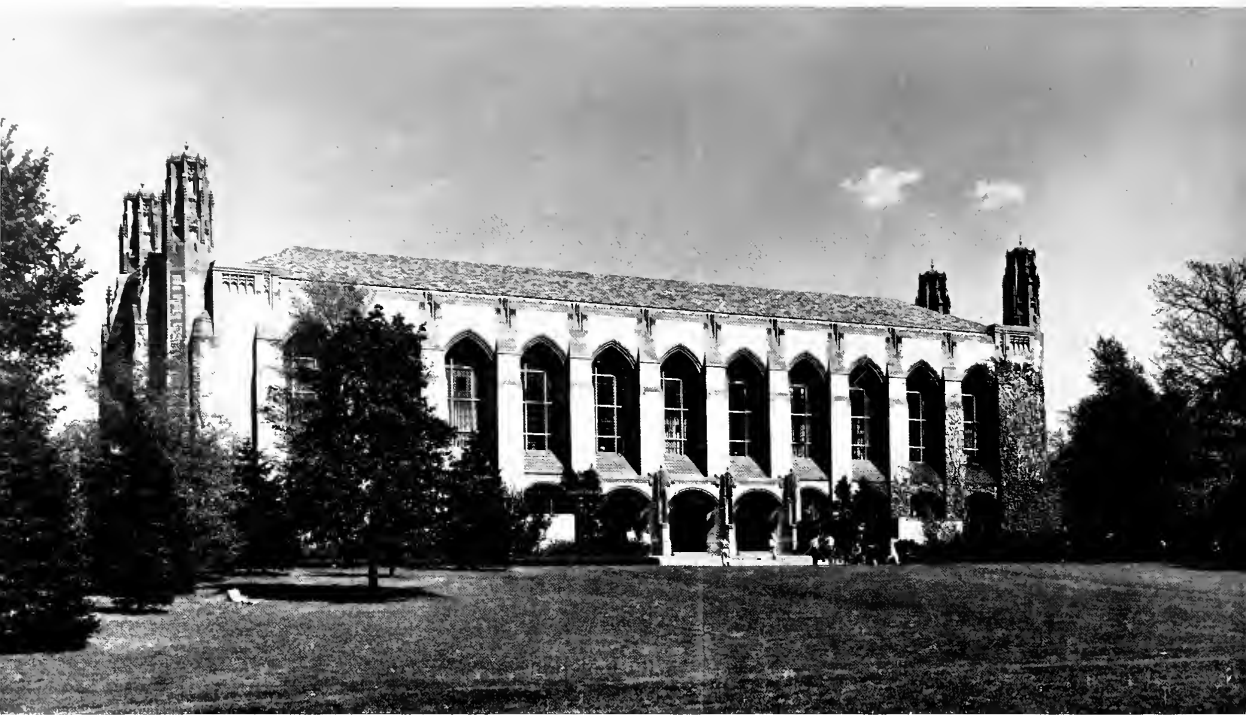

Loyola's greatness is based upon an educational code supported by more than 300 years of Jesuit teaching experience. Its 11 colleges and schools are situated within the heart of the city; its graduates have consistently distinguished themselves in the city's businesses and professions. Loyola's facilities both contribute to and are strengthened by Chicago. Together, Loyola and Chicago represent a pattern of progress, a joint realization of a calling to significance.

The Chicago Story

"Chicago," the Indians would say, describing the place near the big lake. Soon the word was used to designate anything big or powerful or great. Four centuries have seen it alter and grow; but the name has remained, and Chicago is still a synonym for greatness.

Three countries have claimed the site of Chicago: France, in 1673-1760, because of explorations by Joliet and Marquette; England, in 1760-1783, through conquest over France; and the United States, as the result of the War of Independence and a treaty with the Indians.

In 1833, Chicago, with a population of 350, was incorporated as a town; in 1837, a population of 4,179 gave it status as a city. The opening of the Illinois and Michigan canal in 1848, connecting Lake Michigan with the Illinois and Mississippi river systems, launched

Chicago on its career as the nation's great central market place. By 1869 Chicago was an important railroad center, with one of its rail systems reaching to the Pacific coast, and was also well on its way to becoming the grain trading center of the world.

The years 1874-1929 were a period of almost uninterrupted business growth, marked by the increasing diversification of Chicago's industry and the birth of its petroleum refining and electrical appliance industries, today among the nation's largest.

The period of World War II was another notable chapter in the city's history: nearly 450,000 Chicago men and women served in the armed forces; Chicago's industries produced more than 25 billion dollars' worth of war materials.

Chicago's amazing development could not have been accomplished without great citizens as well as great opportunities. The city has always been fortunate in the industry of its people. To them and to their leaders is due a large measure of the credit for the city's remarkable record of progress.

Nearly four million people live within Chicago's 213 square miles. The city has 2,400 churches, synagogues, and other places of worship. The first Sunday School was begun in 1832, when the community had less than 100 inhabitants. Both St. Mary's Catholic Church and the First Presbyterian Church were organized in 1833. The first synagogue was erected in 1849.

The Chicago area includes 20 colleges and universities, and over 200 technical schools. The parochial school system operates 376 elementary and 85 high schools whose attendance approximates 250,000. The public school system, with its 345 elementary schools, 12 high schools, seven vocational schools, one junior college, and a teacher's college, has a yearly enrollment of 500,000. Chicago's first school, opened in 1833, was located above a bakery shop.

A famous cultural center, Chicago boasts the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, a musical organization of international reputation; the phenomenal lyric Opera, which in five years has captured world acclaim for the brilliance of its productions, and a subsidy from the Italian government in recognition of its success; the Art Institute, one of the largest of its kind; numerous theatres; and a complex of museums and libraries devoted to every department of human knowledge.

Chicago's contribution to the financing of the nation's business is substantial. Six of America's largest commercial banks are located here. The Midwest Stock Exchange, a market place for the purchase and sale of stocks and bonds, is the largest outside of New York.

Chicago has 168 public parks and over 200 miles of boulevards. Brookfield and Lincoln Park Zoos are visited by nearly three million people annually.

The 14,500 factories in the Chicago area produce 21 billion dollars worth of goods a year, furnishing employment for over one million industrial workers. Chicago's largest industry is iron and steel. Next in importance are machinery, metal-working, food products, printing and publishing, transportation equipment, chemicals, furniture, and ceramic products.

Every mode of passenger transportation is required to help Chicagoans get about their city, a need which is better appreciated when it is understood that 950,000 Chicagoans a day come to the central business district, which is just one of 75 such districts throughout the city. In addition to steam, diesel, and electrically operated railways, Chicago has one million automobiles, 70 miles of double track elevated railways, and nine miles of subways.

A popular recreational area of the city is the zoo, which many Chicago animals affectionately call home.

The Chicago waterways are the arteries that bring the lifeblood of ore to the steel mills, Chicago's largest industrial complex.

Chicago is served by twenty railroads which operate nearly one-half of the nation's total railroad mileage. Passenger train arrivals and departures average 1,770 per day. The Chicago Terminal district contains almost 8,000 miles of railroad tracks.

Chicago's Midway airport, the world's busiest, accommodates 900 flights a day. O'Hare International Field, with an area of 10 square miles, is the world's largest airport. Air passengers handled here annually account for one-fourth of the nation's total air travel, and one-sixth of the world's. Chicago is served by 14 major air lines, 12 of which offer direct service abroad.

Chicago has four great daily newspapers, 54 foreign language newspapers, many neighborhood journals, and one daily newspaper devoted exclusively to business news. The city supports 1,783,000 telephones, 30 radio broadcasting stations, 5 television stations, and two million television sets.

Another of Chicago's principal industries is meat packing, whose annual product is distributed throughout the country to feed millions of Americans.

The multiple railroad lines converging upon Chicago make it possible for the city's industries and businesses to ship their products to every corner of the land.

The world's busiest airport is Midway, through which pass nine million passengers a year.

Some 11,250 Chicago wholesalers do about 22 billion dollars' worth of business a year. Leading lines of wholesale trade ranked according to dollar sales are groceries, farm products, automotive equipment, machinery, paper, electrical goods, drugs, lumber, dry goods, and hardware.

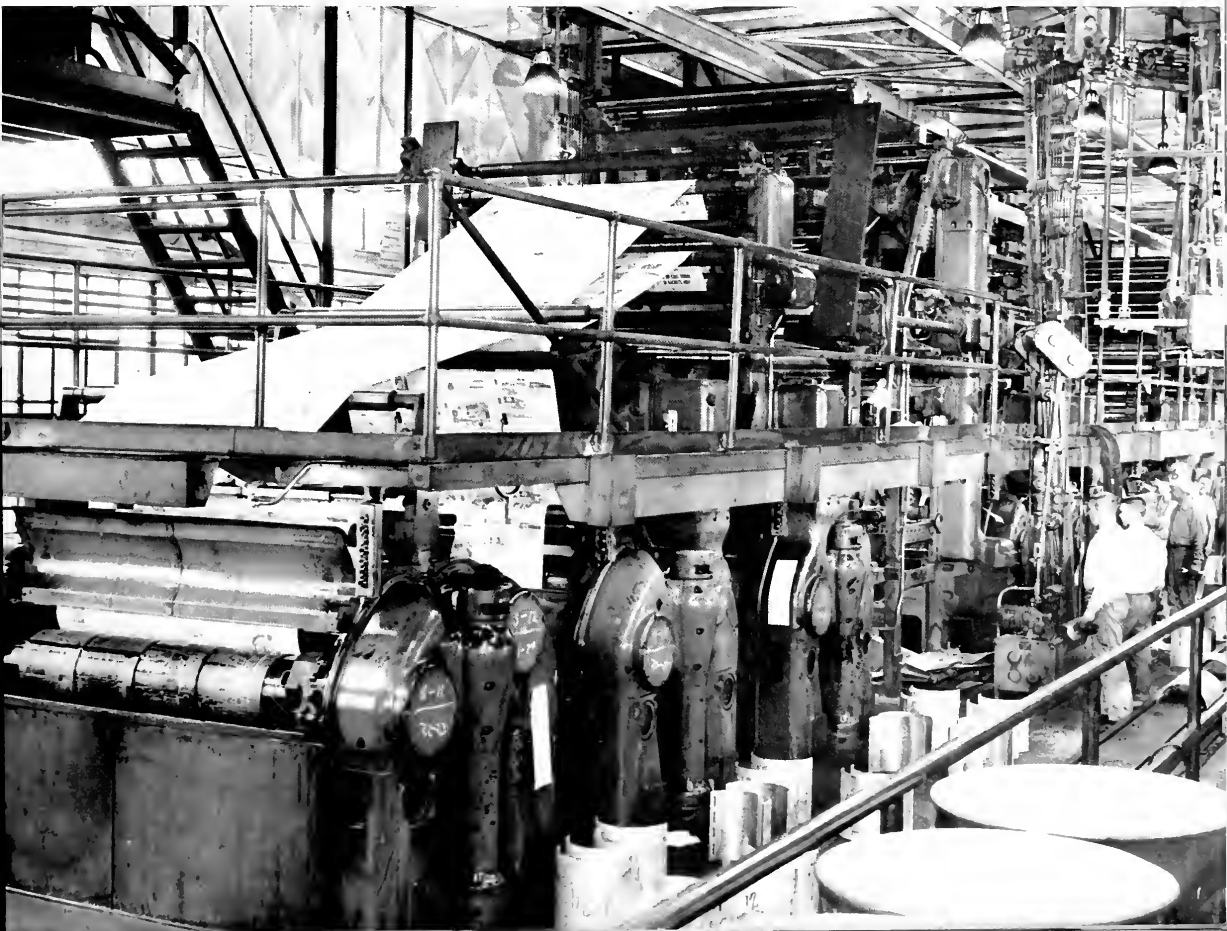

There are 75 separate shopping centers within the city limits, the best known of them being State Street with its world-famous department stores. Chicago's retail trade, exclusive of its mail order trade, amounts to 5.7 billion dollars a year. The city's mail order houses distribute 40 million catalogs annually, and account for 93 percent of the nation's total mail order business.

Chicago possesses a Mayor-City Council form of government. The City Council is composed of 50 aldermen representing as many city wards. The executive branch of the city government includes the mayor, city clerk, treasurer, and the heads of the various city departments. These men administer and enforce the laws enacted by the legislative branch, the City Council. The judicial branch consists of the chief justice of the Municipal Court, 36 associate justices, and their clerks and bailiffs. The cost of running the city of Chicago is slightly over 700 million dollars per year.

According to the National Research Council, Chicago, with its more than 1,200 industrial research laboratories, is the first city in the nation in industrial research. Scientists at the University of Chicago produced the first atomic chain reaction. The first reactor for providing electric power from atomic energy was also made here. Argonne National Laboratory, located in a Chicago suburb, is the nation's leading center of research in the industrial uses of atomic energy.

Millions of newspapers a year are printed and distributed in Chicago, thus making Chicagoans among the most well-informed in the world.

CHICAGO JOURNALISM

The heart of all journalism is the news. The task of the journalist is gathering, recording, and distributing the news. As such, his function has come to be one of the most crucial in modern times.

American democracy, with all its benefits, imposes upon its members the responsibility of active and intelligent participation in their country's affairs, a responsibility which demands that Americans themselves be fully and ably informed of significant personalities and events.

The service, however, which a newspaper renders its readers goes beyond the routine recording of a specific event. The truth of a given situation is neither easy to find nor simple to portray. To bring truth alive, to portray it in print, requires the precision and objectivity which is indicative of journalism at its best. The speed and immediacy, moreover, with which a newspaper can perform its role places it in the unique position of acting as the historian of today, the prophet of tomorrow.

The Loyolan, therefore, proudly dedicates its 1959 edition to journalism and especially to the journalists of Chicago. The city's four major dailies, its many neighborhood and foreign language journals, as well as The New World, have demonstrated their outstanding dedication and skill. Chicago and the nation are richer for their service.

The NEW WORLD

Official Catholic Paper of the Archdiocese of Chicago and the Diocese of Joliet

Pope St. Pius X once said: "In vain will you found missions and build schools if you are not able to wield the offensive and defensive weapons of a loyal Catholic Press."

Ever aware of the prime importance of a strong and widely circulated Catholic newspaper, The New World keeps Chicagoland Catholics informed of the latest and most important news events that in any way affect their lives as Catholics and Americans. Careful and extensive attention is given to matters of domestic, national, and international importance.

To accomplish its purpose, The New World employs forty persons in its own offices for editorial, advertising, circulation, and general business operations. At an expenditure of about $20,000 per week, The New World brings to the faithful of the Archdiocese of Chicago and the Diocese of Joliet more news, pictures, features, instruction, and advertising than any other diocesan paper in the country. A circulation growth of more than 128 percent during the last ten years is an impressive index of its success.

EDITORIAL STAFF. The backbone of the New World is its editorial staff, a group of dedicated men and women who devote themselves to bringing to Chicagoland Catholics a Catholic point of view in current news events.

Chicago Tribune

FROM A first edition of 400 copies pulled from a Washington hand press on June 10, 1847, the Chicago Tribune in 111 years has grown into one of the most widely read standardized newspapers in the United States, with a circulation that exceeds 900,000 on weekdays and 1,400,000 on Sundays.

From a single room above a Chicago grocery store, its offices and plant, centered in world-famous Tribune Tower, have grown into a newspaper publishing organization encompassing timberlands, paper mills, a shipping line, radio and television stations, and other newspapers. From a few columns of hand-set, hand-printed news, it has become a newspaper printed in black and white, newsprint color, color rotogravure, and comicolor on high speed presses of the latest design.

As the Chicago Tribune moves into its 112th year of continuous publication, its news coverage and production facilities are considered among the most complete and efficient available; its editorials are regularly quoted throughout the world; and the annual advertising investment in its columns are unsurpassed by any newspaper in the world.

Tribune Tower has been the home of the Chicago Tribune since 1925, when the Tower was erected from the design awarded first prize in the international architectural competition sponsored by the Tribune in 1922.

CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

Marshall Field, Jr.
Publisher

THE Chicago Daily News was first published as a four-page newspaper on January 3, 1876. Its beginning was modest; it was launched with more faith than capital. Its editorial staff finding the only available quarters in the composing room sat on kitchen chairs and wrote copy on a rough pine table. It did not even own the press upon which it was printed.

From the outset, the Daily News has been an independent newspaper. It was established in an age when partisanship was high, but it escaped the disadvantages and perils of political domination and ushered in a new era in newspaper management.

The Chicago Daily News was the first newspaper in America to establish its own world-wide news-gathering organization; it was the first newspaper to place advertising upon a fixed-rate basis and the first to use the linotype machine.

Under the direction of John S. Knight, its editor and publisher from 1944 to the early part of 1959, the Daily News is now in the process of an $11,000,000 expansion program which reflects the faith of the Daily News in the Chicago community, and the faith of that community in the Chicago Daily News.

On January 5, 1959, the Chicago Daily News was sold to Field Enterprises, Inc., owners of the Chicago Sun-Times. Mr. Marshall Field, Jr., publisher of the Sun-Times, became the new publisher of the Chicago Daily News.

Ground for the Daily News Building was broken on December 29, 1927, and on June 8, 1929, the Daily News moved from its old home at 15 North Wells Street to its present quarters at 400 West Madison.

CHICAGO DAILY SUN-TIMES

THE dedication of the new Sun-Times Building in January, 1958, marked the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Sun-Times through the merger of the Chicago Sun and the Chicago Times on February 2, 1948.

A modern metropolitan newspaper has great responsibilities and obligations. Chief among them are those of advancing the interest of the community and the nation in every possible way; of informing the reader so fully and ably that he can properly exercise his own responsibilities as a citizen of a democracy; and the creation of a market through advertising for those who have goods or services to sell.

All this, the Sun-Times believes, requires an enormous amount of dedication and service as well as the best physical equipment; hence the purpose of its plant, the newest and most modern in the country.

Formally dedicated in January of 1958, the new Sun-Times Building symbolizes the excitement and adventure of publishing a great metropolitan newspaper. The building is located in the heart of the city on the north bank of the Chicago River.

THE CHICAGO AMERICAN

THE Chicago American descends from a line of newspapers which has served Chicago since 1872. Though it has changed, and is still changing along with the city, it has never departed from its zeal to serve Chicago.

Today the American records Chicago's problems and growth; its vitality, humor, and humanity. It mirrors the vast changes taking place in Chicago's way of life.

The American's news profile, however, is not the only side of its personality. Another facet consists of the top writers whose columns and features regularly appear in the American: articles by Ernest Tucker, William Gleason, and Jim Bishop; informative pieces by George Murray and Nate Gross; a television column by Janet Kern, society by Cholly Dearborn, business news by Hal Thompson, and sports by a notable staff of expert writers.

To keep its goals firmly fixed in mind, the Chicago American has adopted as its slogan: "Chicago owned, Chicago edited, Chicago dedicated."

Robert Doherty; J. Raymond Sheriff; W. Allen Wallis, dean of Chicago University's School of Business; Leon A. Bosch, associate dean and director of Northwestern University's Graduate School of Business Administration; Edmund McGrath. Mr. Wallis and Mr. Bosch spoke on the M.B.A. program and its advantages to Loyola graduates.

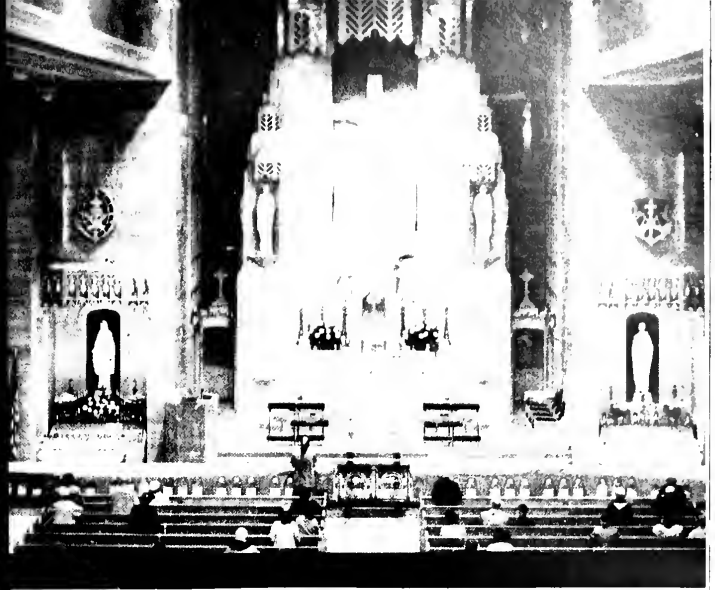

J. Raymond Sheriff, John C. Marcin, Robert Doherty, Andrew Kelly. At a luncheon held at Normandy House, Mr. Marcin, Chicago City Clerk, spoke on "College Graduates and Chicago Politics."

To call a city great is to imply that its inhabitants also are great. To say that they have risen to extraordinary civic achievement reflects directly upon their own personal achievement. Greatness, in any form, demands the fullest command of those principles and values which stand above what is merely particular and contemporary.

Chicago's position, then, as a great religious center is hardly surprising. Seat of the largest Roman Catholic archdiocese in the United States, Chicago, with its thousands of churches and synagogues, provides the requisite spiritual focus for its four million citizens, and the context for a university administration of proved dedication.

Very Rev. James F. Maguire, S. J.

University President

Born in Chicago in 1904, Father Maguire was appointed the twentieth president of Loyola University in July, 1955.

Before assuming his position at Loyola, Father Maguire had been president of Xavier University, Cincinnati, and rector of West Baden College, the Jesuit theologate in West Baden Springs, Indiana.

Father Maguire was born on the West Side of Chicago, across the street from St. Ignatius High School where he later received his secondary school education. Graduating in 1922, Father Maguire entered the Jesuit novitiate at Florissant, Missouri, took his studies at St. Louis University and St. Mary's College, Kansas, and was ordained in 1935.

As rector of all Jesuits at Loyola, Father Maguire is spiritual as well as temporal leader of one of the largest Catholic universities in the United States. His presidency has been an unusually successful one, well suited to the role he has fashioned for Loyola as an influential center of Christian learning in an ever expanding Chicago.

Business Men for Loyola

In a complex age, no educational institution, and certainly not a private university of Loyola University's scope, can exist without the assistance of its alumni and a host of friends. In the Businessmen for Loyola University, Loyola has found very staunch friends.

Founded in the fall of 1955, the purpose of BMLU is to enlist financial cooperation from Chicago corporations. Since its inception, the organization has presented the University with more than 500,000 dollars. Directed by Mr. William Stebler, President of General American Transportation Corporation, this year's drive anticipates contributions totaling 175,000 dollars.

Funds made available by BMLU are used for annual teachers' salary increments and the creation of new professorships. According to Mr. W. Daniel Conroy, Vice-President, Businessmen for Loyola University have already made definite salary raises possible. In so doing, they have distinguished themselves as outstanding servants of the University.

Citizens Board

Several years ago, to mark the occasion of Loyola University's 75th Anniversary of service to Chicago, the Loyola University Citizens Board was formed. Purposes of the Citizens Board are to acquaint citizens of Chicago with the distinctive character of Loyola University's educational program; to inform leading Chicagoans of Loyola's contribution to the community and to the nation; to come to know members of Loyola's faculty; to interpret by publicity the activities of the University; to aid the University's program of teaching and research; and to further the cause of higher education.

The membership of the Board consists of leading business executives and professional leaders. The Citizens Board meets five times a year. At the luncheon meetings faculty members of the University present subjects of interest in their fields of specialization.

Through these meetings the contributions and services of the University to the city and country become more widely known to the citizens of Chicago. The Citizens Board provides a medium through which the public may become acquainted with and interested in the distinctive type of education Loyola offers. The University and the Jesuit community have labored to enrich the cultural life of the city, and to instill in the alumni and students the ideals of democracy and good citizenship which are the concomitants of the religious and philosophic education each receives.

CITIZENS BOARD. Seated at the speaker's table are Mr. Thomas A. Lewis of White, Weld and Company; Mr. Cushman B. Bissell of Lord, Bissell and Brook; Mr. Augustine J. Bowe of Bowe and Bowe, Chairman of the Citizens Board of Loyola; Very Rev. James F. Maguire, S.J., President of Loyola; Mr. Louis J. Cross of Hornblower and Weeks; Mr. Samuel Insull, Jr., of Insull Insurance Agency; Mr. W. Daniel Conroy, Vice-President of Loyola.

Office of the Dean of Students

Mariette LeBlanc, A.M.
Dean of Women

The office of the Dean of Students represents the University Committee on Student Activities and Welfare. Under the chairmanship of the Dean of Students, the function of this committee is to set and regulate policies relating to all student organizations with the exception of religious organizations, and the over-all student organization of the individual colleges and schools.

Mr. Harry McCloskey, the Dean of Students, acts as coordinator of the various programs of the office of the Dean of Students. The student welfare program also falls within his jurisdiction.

Miss Mariette LeBlanc, the Dean of Women, has supervision of the activities and welfare of the women students of the University. Counselling women students, assisting them in the formation of new activities, and administering the women's residence hall are her major functions.

Miss Joan Vaccaro, the Assistant Dean of Women, coordinates undergraduate women's activities and assists in the counselling of new women students. In addition, she is housing director for Loyola Hall, the women's residence hall, off-campus approved housing, and faculty housing. She is also the Director of the Coed Club.

Mr. George Kollintzas holds the position of Assistant Dean of Students and Director of the Loyola Union. As Assistant Dean of Students, Mr. Kollintzas assists in the promotion and coordination of the programs of the office of the Dean of Students. As Director of the Loyola Union, he is responsible for the Union's business operations and Union-sponsored activities such as Charity Day, the Loyola Fair, the Freshman Orientation Days, the Pow-Wow, and Senior Week.

An invaluable asset to the Administration is the conference, where the problems and decisions of the University are discussed and resolved. The conference room and the conference table are symbols of the Administration's interest in thoughtful discussion to promote the continued success of the University.

Rev. James J. Mertz, S.J., extends a grateful thank you to the Executive Committee of the Parents Associates of Loyola on behalf of the University for a successful program.

Parents Associates of Loyola

The admissions program of the Parents Associates of Loyola constitutes an important part of the over-all development plan for Loyola University. Established in the spring of 1957, its specific purpose is to encourage the parents of high school seniors to talk to their sons and daughters about Loyola and the benefits of a Jesuit education. PAL accomplishes its end by appointing parents of present Loyola students to contact the parents of high school seniors. The Parents Associates feel that many questions of a personal nature, questions regarding Loyola's tuition, its educational programs and facilities, can most effectively be answered informally; hence PAL's determination to develop a personal touch through the phone calls and home visits of its workers.

The success of the program is demonstrated by PAL's record for the past year. Under the chairmanship of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ostendorf, PAL workers contacted the parents of 2,740 high school seniors; from this number, over 50 percent of the students concerned expressed an interest in attending Loyola.

In view of the achievements of its formative years, the program of the Parents Associates of Loyola seems earmarked for valuable and lasting service to the University.

Students Associates of Loyola

The Students Associates of Loyola have recently completed their third successful year of operation. Under the chairmanship of Larry Bruozis, Lewis Towers Arts Center, 200 SAL workers contacted 1,325 high school seniors.

Organized in the autumn of 1956, SAL originally conducted its business through the office of the Dean of Admissions. At the present, SAL is part of the University's development program.

More than any other organization at Loyola, SAL gives its members an opportunity to render direct service to the University. The most important function of Loyola students in the program is the guidance which they can give to graduating high school seniors. College students are most effectively equipped to answer the questions of those about to begin their university education.

As it has developed, the SAL program has been able to enlist an ever increasing amount of student support, due mainly to the role various fraternal and academic organizations have assumed in its expansion. All indications point to its continued success.

A city, to succeed, must adequately fulfill its needs. Chicago's response to its citizens' demands for intellectual development has been to create the world's most diversified educational center. With its 34 colleges and universities, its 150 parochial and 400 public schools, Chicago's school system serves nearly a million students annually. Three unique research libraries, 800 public and private libraries, great museums offering graphic instruction in every major academic discipline, the world's largest art school, and a major musical center bear dramatic testimony to a seldom-considered facet of Chicago's greatness. The following pages describe Loyola's participation in Chicago's educational pattern.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The primary end of a school is the education of the student; the primary end of the Graduate School is the transformation and development of the student into a competent scholar. To be successful in cooperating with the college's purpose, the student must be able to work independently; he must be motivated by the unquenchable intellectual curiosity which stems from a deep love of and compelling interest in knowledge, particularly for its own sake. These qualities, if cultivated and permitted to mature, will produce the graduate student who is accurate, thorough, and successful. He must be acquainted with and well-versed in the standard elementary courses, for these will be his tools as a researcher. He must, in addition, be a critical and original thinker, able to consolidate his own knowledge and conclusions with those received from many years of study. This consolidation must then be applied toward scholarly contributions in his field of endeavor. Most important, the graduate student must be persistent in times of trial and failure, and able to rely upon the self-confidence which at times will be his only spur to action.

In answer to constantly increasing demands for advanced instruction, the Graduate School was established as a distinct unit of the University by the Reverend William H. Agnew, S.J., in September, 1926. At present, the dean is the Reverend Stewart E. Dollard, S.J.

OFFICE PERSONNEL OF THE GRADUATE SCHOOL. Susan Schoeben and Mary Agnes McDonnell.

Graduate student, Mrs. Gloria Johans, makes use of reference material available in the Graduate School office to complete an assignment for her graduate studies in English.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

"The true Christian product of Christian education," Pope Pius XI stated, "is the supernatural man who thinks, judges, and acts constantly and consistently in accordance with right reason illumined by the supernatural light of Christ's example and teaching."

The function of Loyola University's College of Arts and Sciences is to form the type of individual spoken of by Pope Pius XI. The aims of the College are to enable students to better know and understand the principles of which they are composed: soul, body, and mind; to be able to distinguish between the erroneous and true; and to fully develop the student's capacities for later happiness, success, and perfection.

The liberal arts college forms the core of the Jesuit plan of education. The significance of these arts is that they are most truly equipped to prepare leaders of society by integrating general education, cultural improvement, and professional excellence with Catholic philosophy.

United with Christian ideals, the liberal arts possess the ability to mold the individual into the "whole man," physically, socially, and spiritually perfect. The characteristics of this type of formative curriculum necessarily stress the basic and Christian disciplines.

Liberal arts training is of tremendous value. It gives people trained for the professions knowledge beyond the particular interests of their specialties. The liberal arts indeed, enable the individual to "evaluate life with the wisdom of the ages and of eternity."

Arts Council

The Arts Council was established to foster the mental, moral, and physical development of the students of the College of the Arts and Sciences; to support student activities; and to develop friendly relations between students and faculty.

The Council is composed of the executive officers of the Council, the class officers elected by the Arts students, an interfraternity representative, a Sodality representative, a Blue Key National Honor Fraternity representative, and a nursing representative.

This year's Arts Council activities included the Junior Advisory Program for freshmen; the Arts Council Dance, which was held at the Morrison Hotel; class parties; the production operations of the Variety Show; the Beanie Bounce; and the organizations picnic, which was held at the end of the school year.

A muddy but exciting event of the Arts Council is the annual tug-of-war between the freshmen and sophomores of the Arts School.

An annual event for the members of the freshman class is the Arts Council's Beanie Bounce, where the fellows reclaim the beanies from the girls in exchange for a dance.

WEST BADEN COLLEGE

The Chicago Province of the Society of Jesus acquired the West Baden Springs Hotel on June 28, 1934, and transformed it into West Baden College, an affiliate of Loyola University reserved exclusively for the education of Jesuit seminarians.

This "Eighth Wonder of the World," which for decades had been a favorite vacation resort for Chicagoans and whose circular structure boasted the world's widest unsupported dome, soon was stripped of its finery and fitted out with the more austere raiment of an institution dedicated to prayer and study. With its School of Philosophy and School of Theology, West Baden College has become the training center for most of the Jesuits working in the Chicago area.

In the past twenty-three years West Baden College has assumed its proper place among the divisions of Loyola University. On July 31, 1945, the school was constituted a Pontifical Institute and was empowered to grant the canonical degree of Licentiate in Philosophy. Special courses in other fields such as history, sociology, English, and mathematics go hand in hand with the regular philosophy courses. The School of Theology has authority from the Sacred Congregation of Seminaries and University Studies to grant the degrees of licentiate and doctorate in sacred theology.

Today at West Baden College there are nearly one hundred Jesuits enrolled in the School of Theology and ninety in the School of Philosophy, along with an administration and faculty of some fifty Jesuit priests and twenty lay brothers. Together they form the West Baden College community of 250 Jesuits. In the past score of years Jesuits from all over the world have come to West Baden, to study at the new "Eighth Wonder of the World."

COLLEGE OF COMMERCE

Until 1921, the undergraduate division of Loyola University had been composed entirely of arts and science courses. In 1922, the Jesuit Administration, realizing the trend toward specialization in education, established the College of Commerce as a separate and distinct unit of the University. From then until 1946, a small Day Division of the Commerce school was conducted on the Lake Shore Campus while the much larger Evening Division was held in the University's building at 28 N. Franklin St. In September, 1946, the entire College of Commerce was moved to Lewis Towers where both day and evening Divisions operated until June, 1950. The Evening Division was then disassociated from the College and joined to the University College which is the present evening school of the University. At present, the College of Commerce serves approximately 750 students.

The professional objective of the College consists in developing a student who will effectively meet the challenge of the business world. This development is carried out in the latter portion of the Commerce program. The courses in this half of the curriculum study the complex technical society of contemporary America. All students, regardless of their selected fields of concentration, are required to acquaint themselves with all the areas of business.

The College of Commerce is possibly the fastest growing school of the University. Led by its present dean, J. Raymond Sheriff, the school offers new courses and a larger and improved faculty each semester. At present there is talk of improvements in the curricula and the possible addition of a graduate program for the College of Commerce. To make room for this expansion, the University is acquiring additional downtown facilities.

The Commerce Council was established to unify the administration of the student affairs and extra-curricular activities, to encourage participation in extra-curricular activities, and to provide student self-government to the members of the College of Commerce.

The Council is composed of the executive officers, the class officers elected by the Commerce students, and the Blue Key National Honor Fraternity representative.

This year's activities sponsored by the Commerce Council included the annual Sno-Ball Dance, which was held in January at the Edgewater Beach Hotel; a senior cocktail party; class parties; and the financial operations of the Variety Show. A new event in the Council's activities this year was the Lecture and Luncheon Series, which brought representatives of business, government, and education to Loyola.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE

The history of University College has been one of constant expansion and growth. Originally founded to supplement the education of teachers and others who could not otherwise attend college during the day, University College at present offers a selection of courses of special interest to students who are not working for degrees but who are seeking to broaden their education in cultural, business, and generally avocational fields.

Recently, the College has attracted many students with a series of courses designed primarily for personal satisfaction and advancement.

Although University College operates only during late afternoons, evenings, and on Saturdays, it offers students complete curricula toward baccalaureate degrees.

The average University College student is, in many respects, a contrast to his day school counterpart. He is determined, purposeful, serious. He is definitely aware of his desire to receive an education, and bases his actions on the fulfillment of that desire. He realizes, moreover, that his purpose for attending college is his own improvement and growth.

University College is, in a sense, Loyola University in miniature. The College of Arts and Sciences is represented by courses in humanities, mathematics, social studies and education; the College of Commerce by accounting, finance, economics, and management. It is, in effect, an independent academic world, liberal in the scope of its activities, forceful in its resolve to present education of the highest competence to as great a number of students as possible. Its success is a tribute to its own dedication and the quality of its students.

SCHOOL OF DENTISTRY

As a Catholic dental school, the Loyola University School of Dentistry strives to prepare its students to be competent in the general practice of dentistry, and to impart to them a sound appreciation of the moral, social, and spiritual values of life. To realize these broad objectives, the faculty of the School endeavors to provide an intellectual atmosphere which is conducive to the presentation of faith and morals, and undertakes to train students in the responsible diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of oral diseases.

Situated in the heart of the West Side Medical Center, the Dental School is housed in a five-story building which contains all the facilities needed for the four-year dental program. Significant among these facilities are two amphitheatres seating 275 and 150 students respectively; a reference library equipped with text and reference volumes, as well as current dental and medical journals; and a closed circuit television system. The School, in fact, was the first in the nation to integrate television techniques into its curriculum. As a result, operations and techniques performed by an instructor can be clearly shown to an entire class simultaneously, each student receiving an unobstructed view of the procedure being described in any type of demonstration.

The Loyola University School of Dentistry's record of service to the Chicagoland community is impressive. Half of the dentists of the area, for instance, are graduates of the School. In addition, Dental School students and faculty staff the Loyola Dental Clinic — the School's teaching laboratory. The Clinic provides service for people of moderate means seeking expert dental care. During the past year, the staff handled 70,000 patient visits.

SCHOOL OF LAW

It was Blackstone who said, "I think it an undeniable position that a competent knowledge of the laws of the society in which we live is the proper accomplishment of every gentleman and scholar, a highly useful, I had almost said essential, part of liberal and polite education."

Giving proper recognition to the permanent value of Blackstone's statement, as well as achieving a more basic orientation, the School of Law of Loyola University is dedicated to the philosophy that there is an ideal and objective order of justice, based upon the natural law, by which human beings are endowed with certain inalienable rights and obligations, to enable them to realize in human dignity the divine destiny decreed by their Creator; that the natural law respects and governs all human actions and therefore the actions of man in a civil society which is subject to constantly changing political, social, and economic forces; that by the recognition and application of the natural to the positive civil law, human society can approach the ideal and objective order of justice intended for human beings.

Established in 1908, the School of Law grew until, in 1921, a morning division was added and the School was made co-educational. In 1924 it became a member of the Association of American Law Schools, and the following year was placed on the approved list of the American Bar Association.

Today, headed by Dean John C. Fitzgerald, the School of Law serves approximately 250 students. A staff of twenty outstanding professors and instructors offer a course of studies designed primarily to prepare students for the practice of law in any jurisdiction where the common law prevails. The standards and principles of law are treated not as ends in themselves, but as the rational means to the attainment of objective justice.

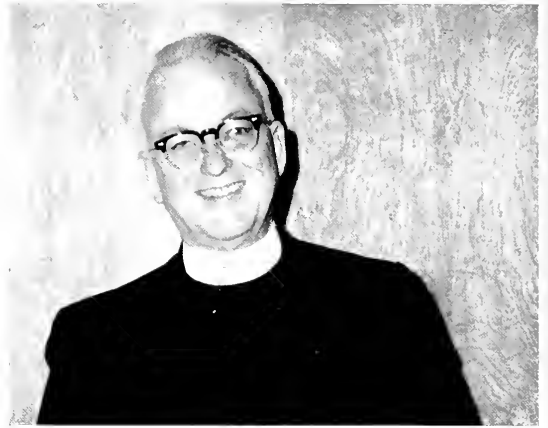

The law building, located at 41 East Pearson, affords exceptional opportunity to observe sessions of the many law courts of Chicago.

Law students take advantage of the facilities of the law library, which contains over twenty-five thousand volumes.

STRITCH SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

The Stritch School of Medicine at present is one of the leading Catholic medical schools in the world. A growing and expanding arm of the University, the fundamental objective of the School is to provide an opportunity for education in sound medical science and to fit the qualified student for the practice of medicine. An additional responsibility, and one which goes hand in hand with this objective, is that of extending, through the research effort of teacher and student, the knowledge and methods of control of the physical and mental afflictions of man.

To accomplish its objectives, the School must select from its many applicants those men and women who by reason of social and emotional maturity seem prepared to begin the arduous study of medicine. These selected applicants are exposed, throughout their course of study, to the finest education obtainable.

In connection with the aim to encourage advanced study and research, the Board of Graduate Studies of the University approved, in 1947, the graduate programs of the departments of Anatomy, Biochemistry, Microbiology, Pharmacology, and Physiology.

The Medical School maintains clinical facilities with various hospitals for the purpose of giving its students as much practical experience as possible. Important among these clinics are those operated at Mercy Hospital, Loretto Hospital, Lewis Memorial Maternity Hospital, and Cook County Hospital.

Students and faculty of the School staff the Free Dispensary at Mercy Hospital whose clinic is one of only two clinics serving low income families in a 12.5 square mile area on Chicago's near south side.

Medical faculty members are engaged in research in heart disease, geriatrics, and infant care. Their findings form part of the fund of medical knowledge being uncovered in Chicago's great Medical Center.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

The Loyola School of Nursing is one of the youngest colleges of the University, and at the same time one of the most remarkable. It offers, for example, one of only four collegiate nursing programs in the state of Illinois; thirty-two per cent of Illinois students enrolled in collegiate nursing programs during the last academic year were studying at the Loyola School of Nursing; and more than 600 graduates of the School hold staff positions in Chicago hospitals, welfare agencies, public schools, and industries.

The School of Nursing first granted University degrees in 1935. It now offers two degree programs: a basic program designed primarily for the high school graduate, combining nurses' training with college academic work; and a supplemental academic program for the professional nurse, as well as a course of study in Public Health Nursing.

The formidable record of the School reflects the philosophy of Loyola University as a whole. The School believes that nurses profit much from the liberal arts taught under Christian inspiration. These studies stimulate the development of the specifically human powers, they promote orderly mental growth, they open the heart's ambition to serve fellow men with competent skill and with the charity of Christ. Specialized concentrations in nursing studies add the professional knowledge needed for a more complete realization of personality and of devotion to the welfare of others.

Graduates of the School of Nursing receive experience in the surgical, medical, obstetrical, pediatric, psychiatric, tuberculosis, and public health fields. Twenty Chicago area hospitals and welfare agencies cooperate in providing professional training under Loyola faculty supervision.

LOYOLA INSTITUTE OF SOCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL RELATIONS

Loyola University, recognizing the strategic importance of employer-employee relationships in modern industrial society, founded the Institute of Social and Industrial Relations in 1941. By this pioneer action, Loyola became the first institution of higher learning in the Middle West to offer a comprehensive program of study in the area of industrial relations. Starting with but a few students, the Institute has, over a period of years, grown into one of the largest institutes of this type in the United States.

The purpose of the Institute has been to give thorough training on the graduate level to men and women in expanding fields of labor relations, personnel management, and public administration. The training combines theoretical studies and practical experience. The program is founded on the principles of Christian ethics and philosophy.

Early in its history, the Institute inaugurated a plan for providing the individual student with practical experience in his field. At that time the Institute sought and received the full cooperation of organizations in the Chicago area which are involved in industrial relations. Various companies, unions, and government agencies regularly devote time and energy to introduce Institute students to the actual operation of that phase of industrial relations in which they are engaged. This plan is called the Internship Program (cooperative training program).

All part-time students who cannot take the Internship are required to attend five informal seminars during their academic residency. These meetings give the student an opportunity to discuss the problems and practices of the various organizations with top-level men, and to supplement theoretical knowledge the student has gained in the classroom.

Denis T. Walsh, regional manager of Magnaflux Corporation, was the first speaker in the Institute's new lecture series.

SCHOOL OF SOCIAL WORK

Social work is a helping profession. Social workers help troubled people cope with problems which stand in the way of productive and satisfying living.

The Catholic social worker, in helping the underprivileged, the needy, the physically and mentally ill, recognizes the essential dignity of man and appreciates both his natural and supernatural qualities. He applies moral and ethical principles in freeing individuals from the obstacles which impede their continued growth. The social worker, then, assists in God's own work—the betterment of mankind.

But more than principles go into the make-up of a social worker. Scientific knowledge of human behavior, familiarity with community social services, and an intense, warm interest in people are necessary equipment. The social worker must be able to create in the individual a desire to help himself. For only by taking an active and responsible part in the solution of his problem will anyone be directed toward recovery and independent living.

The Loyola School of Social Work possesses a specific philosophy with which it permeates its curriculum. Within a framework of Scholastic philosophy and Catholic theology, the School provides an atmosphere conducive to an integration of the highest professional competence with the ideals of the Christian way of life.

Current enrollment in the School is 132, including some part-time students. The Student Council plans professional and social activities which are conducted by the student body throughout the school year. Students have the opportunity to contribute to the three student publications of the University and one publication of the School.

Students and faculty of the School of Social Work enjoy a festive evening at the School's annual Christmas party.

DEPARTMENT OF HOME STUDY

Recognizing an accepted principle among educators that educational methods must be adapted to human needs and to actual social conditions, Loyola University has extended its educational services to men and women whom circumstances prevent from receiving training as resident students. To meet the needs of thousands of persons eager to continue their education but unable to attend school, Loyola in 1922 established its Home Study Division.

Today, Loyola is the only Catholic University in the United States to be affiliated with the U. S. Armed Forces Institute, enabling servicemen to study at their posts throughout the world. One-third of the present Home Study enrollment is composed of such servicemen.

The courses of the Home Study Division are open to men and women, to students of college grade and to those preparing for college entrance, to resident students recommended to the division by their dean, and to non-resident students within and beyond the state of Illinois, or in any foreign country.

LOYOLA CENTER FOR CHILD GUIDANCE

Established in 1941, the Loyola Center for Child Guidance provides psychological service to disturbed children and to their often anxious and perplexed parents.

Staffed by seven full-time psychologists and graduate students in clinical psychology and counseling, the Center offers complete psychological examinations, counseling of parents, recreational therapy for young children, and individual and group remedial work in reading.

Since its founding, the Center has assisted more than 7,000 clients. The intake of new families averages over 500 a year.

Included in the services of the Child Guidance Center is psychological therapy to treat children's emotional problems.

INSTITUTE OF JESUIT HISTORY

The Institute of Jesuit History was founded in 1936 by the President of the University, Father Samuel K. Wilson, S.J., a noted historian. The purpose of the Institute is to gather historical documents pertaining to the Jesuits in the Americas and to publish books and articles from these sources. The members of the Institute also direct the research of graduate students. Since 1936 the Jesuit members of the Institute have published fourteen volumes, six of which have been sponsored by the University. The books have dealt with the colonial period of New France and the Mississippi Valley and have uncovered many new facts about the colonial period of Canadian, Mississippi Valley, Louisiana, Arizona, and Mexican history.

The Institute has published Mid-America, a historical quarterly magazine containing scholarly articles by historians of this country, Canada, England, France, and Italy, who have written not only on the Jesuits but on topics of national and international interest. The magazine can be found in all important libraries in this country and abroad. Historians regularly consult the large collections of documents in the Institute files.

The Director of the Institute and Managing Editor of Mid-America has been Rev. Jerome V. Jacobsen, S.J.

To govern a city of Chicago's size is a monumental task. To govern it well demands leadership of the highest order. The quality of leadership which Chicago continues to enjoy, accordingly, is indicated by its remarkable record of progress.

The following description of the Loyolan Awards, the Miss Varsity Contest, and Who's Who in American Colleges represents the University's recognition of student leaders at Loyola.

LOYOLA HIGHLIGHTS

WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges was first published for the school year 1934-35. Some time before this publication the idea of creating one national basis of recognition for college students that would be democratic and devoid of dues, initiation fees, or cost to the student was conceived. Two years of investigation and inquiry among college administrators and students was held before the beginning of Who's Who. Endorsement by these groups encouraged the venture, which became a reality in 1934.

This year marks the first time Loyola University has participated in this national recognition organization. Recognition by Who's Who means that the student was first officially recommended from Loyola and then accepted by the organization.

Selection for the organization is based upon a student's scholarship, his leadership, his cooperation in educational and extracurricular activities, and his promise of future usefulness. Each institution participating is assigned a separate quota large enough to give a well-rounded representation of the student body but small enough to confine nominations to an exceptional group of students.

Each student who becomes a member receives, without cost, a certificate of recognition awarded by the organization, recognition in the annual publication for the year during which he was selected in the form of a writeup of his college and personal record, and benefits of the Student Placement Service provided by the organization.

LOYOLAN AWARDS

Recognizing the great demands made upon student leaders and the value of the services which such students perform for Loyola, the 1959 LOYOLAN this year inaugurated the practice of presenting awards to nine graduates who have distinguished themselves by their leadership in the university.

To select the recipients of the awards, a committee of eight persons, students and faculty, were selected on the basis of their impartiality and their wide knowledge of the student body. The student members of the committee were: Thomas Haney, chairman; Robert Ryba, LOYOLAN representative; Wayne Lowe, Blue Key representative; Andrew Kelly, Loyola Union representative; and Patricia Kubistal, coed representative. The faculty members were Rev. Thomas J. Bryant, S.J., LOYOLAN moderator; Dr. Earl John Clark; and Dr. Kenneth M. Jackson.

To help the committee in its selection, the moderators of the various student organizations, the deans of the university, and certain administrators were asked to submit nominations for students they considered eligible for the awards.

At the invitation of Loyola, Chicago Chapter, Blue Key Honor Fraternity, the editorial board presented its awards at the annual Blue Key dinner-dance.

The following students, selected because of their outstanding leadership at Loyola, their dedication to their university, and their over-all participation in university activities, are presented with the first annual LOYOLAN Awards:

ROBERT F. DOHERTY (Commerce), JOSEPH ERACI (Medical), FRANCIS E. GOODMAN (Law), WILLIAM M. HEGAN (Arts), SAM P. LIAROS (Dental), PATRICIA MCCARTER (Nursing), WILLIAM M. PLANTE (Arts), MICHAEL POELLE (Arts), JUDITH M. WOLFGRAM (Arts).

LOYOLAN AWARDS COMMITTEE. Robert Ryba, Patricia Kubistal, Thomas Haney, Dr. Kenneth M. Jackson, Andrew Kelly.

LOYOLAN AWARDS RECIPIENTS. Judith M. Wolfgram, College of Arts and Sciences; William M. Plante, College of Arts and Sciences; William M. Hegan, College of Arts and Sciences.

LOYOLAN AWARDS RECIPIENTS. Robert F. Doherty, College of Commerce;
Patricia McCarter, School of Nursing; Michael Polelle, College of Arts and Sciences.

LOYOLAN AWARDS RECIPIENTS. Sam P. Liaros, College of Dentistry, Francis E. Goodman, School of Law, Joseph Iraci, School of Medicine.

UNION POW-WOW

Highlighting the fall social calendar was the Rambler Pow-Wow held in December. Sponsored by the Loyola Union, the Pow-Wow featured a variety of colorful events. Opening the weekend's events was a jazz concert in the Union House, starring Bob Scobey, Clancy Hayes, Toni Lee Scott, and Dave Black.

Following the concert a pep rally was held on the athletic field to cheer the basketball team on to victory. The evening was climaxed with an informal mixer.

On Saturday the Pow-Wow activities began with a float parade. Over twenty floats participated in the parade down Sheridan Road to the Lake Shore Campus. The afternoon's activities included the annual freshman-sophomore tug-of-war, a reception for the alumni, and fraternity open-houses. In the evening the students watched the Ramblers crush the Denver University team in Alumni Gym. To conclude the Pow-Wow's activities a Victory Dance was held at the Edgewater Golf Club.

The general chairman for the Pow-Wow was Frank J. Hogan III.

The award for the best decoration of a fraternity house was presented to Tau Kappa Epsilon, whose house is pictured below.

Standing in back: Roxane Slaski, Frank Hogan, Bill Plante. Standing in front: Norb Slowikowski, holding trophy presented to Alpha Delta Gamma for best fraternity float, and Bill Pederson, holding trophy presented to Alpha Delta Gamma for best float in the Float Parade.

Coach George Ireland encourages students to support the basketball team at the pep rally held in conjunction with the Pow-Wow.

Alpha Delta Gamma's colorful representation of the map of the United States was judged to be the best float of the Pow-Wow Float Parade.

Second place distinction in the Float Parade was awarded to the Lake Shore Sodality's unique entry entitled "Don Quixote."

"Show Boat," Tau Kappa Epsilon's entry in the Float Parade, was awarded third place in the competition.

Another of the spectacular floats in the parade was the entry of Tau Delta Phi.

MISS VARSITY CONTEST

Highlighting the social calendar of the first semester was the annual Miss Varsity contest. Sponsored by the Loyola Union, the contest was the featured attraction of the Fall Frolic.

Described as the most spirited event in years, the Miss Varsity contest had seventeen participants, representing many of Loyola's organizations and fraternities. Miss Roxane Slaski, the candidate of Pi Alpha Lambda fraternity, was selected Miss Varsity of Loyola. Miss Slaski's duties as Miss Varsity are to reign over all Union activities and to represent the Union at all school functions.

Andy Kelly, president of the Union, was chairman of the Fall Frolic and Mel Kamm served as chairman of the Miss Varsity contest.

Arlen Phillips, Miss Varsity of 1957-58, crowns her successor, Roxane Slaski, at the Union Fall Frolic.

Members of Loyola's fraternities operate the voting booths for the Miss Varsity Contest.

VARIETY SHOW

"Loyola Today" was the theme of the annual Arts and Commerce Variety Show. Playing to capacity audiences, the Variety Show was a sparkling display of student talent, which ranged from singing and dancing to comedy and farce.

Winners of the Friday night awards presented by the Arts and Commerce Councils were: the Coed Club's act in the social-academic organization category, Theta Phi Alpha's take-off on the basketball team in the fraternity category, and Joanne Roman and Alan Jorgensen's "Foreign Intrigue" in the individual-act category.

The Alumni Association's "IGGY" award for the most outstanding act in the show was won by Roman and Jorgensen's satire on the late-late movies on television.

Kevin McKeough, president of the Arts junior class, was the producer of the Variety Show. The assistant producer was Maury McCarthy, vice-president of the Arts junior class. Miss Eleanor Lommel was the show's director. The business chairman of the show was Jack Nicholson, who was assisted by Mel Kamm as promotion manager and Bob Buckley as finance manager.

VARIETY SHOW COMMITTEE. Bob Doherty, Brian Van Vlierbergen, Pat Culhane, Bill Plante, Eleanor Lommel, Kevin McKeough, Jerry Bannon, Bill Trapp, John Dentzer.

Winners of the outstanding-act award, the "IGGY," were Joanne Roman and Alan Jorgensen for their "Foreign Intrigue" act.

One of the highlights of the first act of the Variety Show was Theta Phi Alpha's take-off on the basketball team.

Kappa Beta Gamma's suffragette act brought back memories to the older members of the audience.

The old-fashioned minstrel show provided the inspiration for the Nursing Council's act.

One of the outstanding professional school acts was the Dental School Choir.

Opening the Variety Show was the Coed Club's satire on the attendance of coeds at Loyola.

Round and round went many Loyola students on the ferris wheel at the annual Student Fair.

On Thursday night the fairgrounds were crowded with students preparing for the Fair weekend.

The 1959 Loyola Fair was housed in a large tent located on the athletic field at Lake Shore Campus.

One of the many colorful booths at the Fair was Theta Phi Alpha's huckley-buck.

Bill Plante, general chairman of the Fair, calls out the winning number for the 1959 Chevrolet Impala.

The scooter ride offered fun for all visitors to the Fair.

LOYOLA FAIR

Originally called the Loyola Fair and Frolic when it was organized in 1954, the Loyola Fair is sponsored annually by the student Union to raise funds for the improvement of student recreational facilities. The Fair has become the largest and most successful student undertaking in the University.

Held annually in May, the Fair brings rides, tents, raffle booths, and big-name entertainment to the Lake Shore Campus. This year, over thirty booths were installed in several tents located on the athletic field. Such popular rides as the ferris wheel, merry-go-round, and tilt-a-whirl provide entertainment for the younger visitors to the Fair.

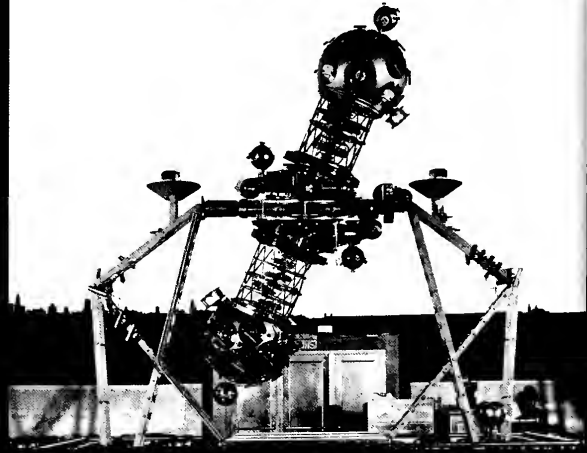

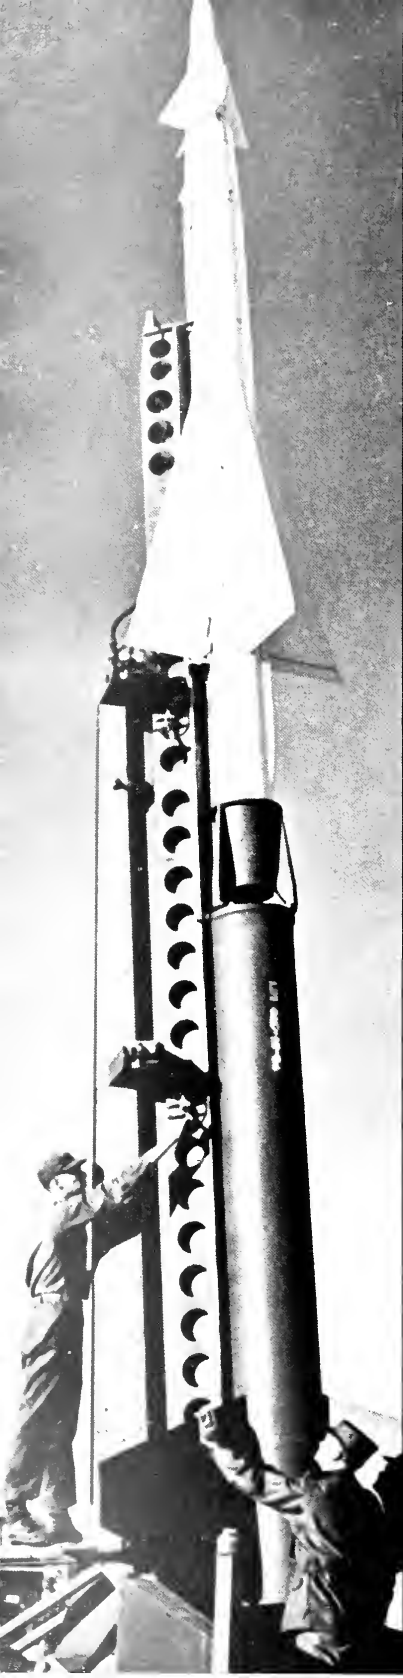

Such nationally-known entertainers as Sauter-Finnegan, Erroll Garner, Shelly Berman, Roger Williams, and Richard Maltby have been star attractions.

Cadillacs, Thunderbirds, hi-fi units, and color television sets have been given away in the raffle held in conjunction with the Fair.

For the second successive year, the Fair was under the general chairmanship of William M. Plante. Assisting Mr. Plante were Bill Hegan, vice-chairman, and Andy Kelly, treasurer.

FAIR COMMITTEE. Jerry White, Bob McCauley, Tom Haney, Barb Dwyer, Bill Hegan, Sue Kelly, Bill Plante, Joel Chrastka, Andy Kelly, Tony Strak, Jim Gorman, Toni Shea, Frank Smith.

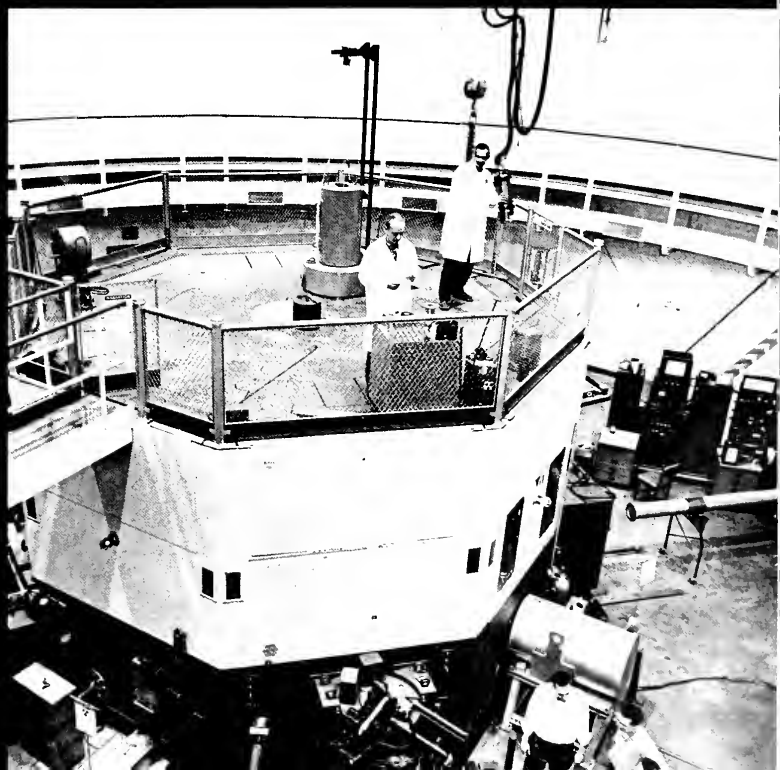

Chicago's eminence as a center of science and research is not surprising. Scientific proficiency is an irreplaceable requisite for the high level of material prosperity the city has consistently enjoyed. With its more than 1200 laboratories constantly striving to improve the products used in its daily life and to discover new methods of raising its standard of living, Chicago leads the nation in industrial research.

Loyola's academic organizations acquaint their members with the importance of science in their daily lives.

ORGANIZATIONS

ACCOUNTING CLUB

Founded in 1949, the Accounting Club strives to bridge the gap between accounting theory and its practical application. The Club accomplishes this aim through speakers; representatives of public accounting firms, industry, and banking; field trips; and the distribution of literature.

For the past three years, the Accounting Club has been affiliated with the Illinois Conference of Accountancy Clubs. As a member of this organization, Loyola actively participates in presenting an Opportunity Conclave, an entire day devoted to acquainting the accounting student with the opportunities available for employment, training, and advancement in the business world.

AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY OFFICERS. Tony Scafidi, vice-president; Dr. Harvey Posvic, moderator; Raymond F. Orloski, president; George Kotrba, secretary-treasurer.

AMERICAN CHEMICAL SOCIETY

The Student Affiliate of the American Chemical Society is designed for those students who manifest a firm and sincere interest, via their academic program, in the science of chemistry.

The Society has bi-monthly meetings which are aimed at gathering together students of chemistry and other interested individuals in order to increase and enrich their knowledge of this science. Guest lecturers, films, demonstrations, and other interesting highlights are featured at these meetings.

The Society also publishes a monthly paper, entitled The Loyola Chemisphere, which was distributed for the first time this year in place of the organization's former publication, The Catalyst.

ASSOCIATION OF THE U. S. ARMY

The Association of the United States Army (A.U.S.A.) is a professional and social organization comprised of civilian and Army personnel and ROTC college units. Its purpose is both to inform military and civilian personnel of new Army technological advances and to promote government legislation to further Army aims.

The Association brings to Loyola prominent military men to address the Cadet Corps, which, as a result, gains a closer contact with Army personnel and Army life in general.

In addition to its professional activity, the Association also sponsors such social events as the annual Military Ball and an Open House.

The Association also provides an orientation program for the freshmen at the beginning of each year.

A.U.S.A. OFFICERS. Ed Praszek, Dave Lynch, Joseph Burke, John Dentzer.

BELLARMINE PHILOSOPHY CLUB

The recently reorganized Robert Bellarmine Philosophy Club of Lewis Towers is open to all students who desire to discuss current philosophic problems. The main purpose of the Club is to give students an opportunity to become acquainted with the various systems of philosophy and, in addition, to lead them toward a better knowledge and appreciation of Scholastic philosophy.

Interspersed with these discussions this year, a series of six informal talks have been delivered by members of the faculty. These intercourses aim both at broadening the knowledge of members and also at promoting a closer student-faculty relationship. This year's theme for discussion was philosophy's place among the other sciences and arts.

BELLARMINE PHILOSOPHY CLUB OFFICERS. Standing: Claude Davis, Mr. George Drury, Joe Kunkel. Seated: Doreen Funk.

CADENCE

Cadence, the Loyola literary quarterly, exists to provide a stimulus for fine writing on the part of the student body. Each year, Cadence publishes a wide selection of articles on the arts, philosophy, political science, history, and current events. In addition, Cadence attempts to publish the best fiction and poetry written at Loyola, as well as reviews of notable books and recordings.

Always, by attempting to encourage discussion and debate, analysis and criticism, Cadence hopes to impart to all its readers a firm belief in the necessity for continual examination of the world around them in light of Catholic principles and a belief that the problems they face today must be confronted directly with all the energy, intelligence, and faith at their command.

CHORAL SOCIETY OFFICERS. Lauretta Bonke, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Graciano Salvador, moderator; Marian Kizenkavich, president.

CHORAL SOCIETY

Founded in 1926, the Loyola Choral Society provides an opportunity for students interested in music to publicly display their talents. This aim is achieved through the presentation of such musical expressions as the opera, concert, and various other programs.

In December, 1958, the Society presented its annual Christmas Program at the Loyola Community Theatre. Featured in this program were "Bethlehem," a sacred cantata by J. H. Maunder, and other Christmas choral numbers. In February, 1959, the Society presented its Lenten Concert of Sacred Music at Madonna Della Strada Chapel.

In May, 1959, Verdi's opera "The Masked Ball" was presented at the Loyola Community Theatre.

COED CLUB

This year the Coed Club celebrated its tenth anniversary. Founded in the spring of 1949, the Club has become one of the largest social organizations on campus.

Through its "Big Sister" plan the Coed Club assists new coeds to orient themselves to life at Loyola. In addition, the club sponsors numerous activities throughout the year. At the beginning of each semester a welcoming tea is held in honor of incoming freshmen and transfer students. Candidates for the Miss Varsity Contest make their debut at the Club's Card Party and Fashion Show. Highlights of the Christmas vacation were the party at St. Vincent's Orphanage and the formal dance which this year was held at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

CURTAIN GUILD

Highlighting the Curtain Guild's twenty-second season were four major productions. Shakespeare's epic Henry IV was performed in November on a set modeled after an Elizabethan theatre. In January audiences roared their approval of The Skin of Our Teeth. Thornton Wilder's chronicle of the human race replete with trick scenery and a domesticated mammoth. Arthur Miller's All My Sons was a moving and provocative offering in April. A musical climaxed the year's activities in May.

In addition to the Guild's major productions, the members of the organization produced a series of workshops on Sunday afternoons at the Lake Shore Speech and Drama Room. Original scripts by Frank Canino and Alan Jorgensen, an adaptation by John Cappelletti, scenes from The Lark, The Cocktail Party, and The Chairs were among the selections presented.

The Guild's productions were under the direction of Moderator Hugh D. Dickinson and William C. Morris, chairman and assistant professor respectively of the Speech Department.

The Curtain Guild's first production of the school year was Henry IV, Shakespeare's epic about early fifteenth-century England.

The Skin of Our Teeth, Thornton Wilder's chronicle of the human race, was the Curtain Guild's January production.

Mr. Hugh Dickinson, chairman of the Speech and Drama Department, offers the classic pose of an anxious director as he watches a Guild rehearsal.

Spencer Cosmos, as Prince Hal of the Henry IV production, aims a fatal thrust at his enemy, Hotspur, played by Richard Crook.

CURTAIN GUILD OFFICERS. Hugh Dickinson, moderator; Mariann Rempala; Dan Atkinson; and Frank Canino, president.

Members and guests mingle at the Curtain Guild-sponsored Sunday workshops, held at various times throughout the year.

DEBATING SOCIETY

During the 1958-59 season, the Loyola Debate Society traveled far and wide spreading the name of Loyola University. From Boston on the east coast to Chicago's neighbors in Milwaukee, the debaters of Loyola have carried on the tradition of forensics long established at the University.

Under the direction of Mr. Donald J. Stinson, moderator, the Debate Society again sponsored the "All Jesuit College Debate Tournament," a tradition established last year in honor of the Jesuit Centennial.

Individual members of the Society also distinguished themselves in the year's activities. The freshmen debaters placed in the upper quarter for speaker's honors at the Navy Pier Tournament. Mary Lee Cullen was awarded the medal for most outstanding speaker at the Tournament.

ECONOMICS-FINANCE SOCIETY

The Economics-Finance Society, a member chapter of the American Finance Association, is designed to supplement its members' education in finance and economics with an interesting and informative program of speakers and professional tours.

Speakers for the year included Mr. Julian Howes of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, who spoke on the fundamentals of investment; and Mr. Arnold Schumacher of the Chicago Title and Trust Company, who presented his economic forecast of the business conditions for 1959.

In early December, the Society participated in an open-house program sponsored by Loyola for high school seniors from various Chicagoland schools. Also in December, the Society sponsored a tour to the Midwest Stock Exchange and the Chicago Board of Trade.

ECONOMICS-FINANCE SOCIETY OFFICERS. Standing: Marty Corrigan, Jim Foley. Seated: Harry Drayson, president; Dr. Sylvester M. Frizol, moderator.

ECONOMICS-FINANCE SOCIETY. Standing: Don McLean, Thaddeus Wyroski, Leo Brennan, Joe Burke, Matt Moran, Dick Donovan, Dan Kummer, Joseph Russo. Seated: Frank Gorecki, Andy Kelly, Bill Ressel, Dick Lucas, Bob Goodsell, Nick Motherway, Ed McGrath, Rich Roberts.

Moderator, Education Society

EDUCATION SOCIETY

The Education Society is an academic and social organization of students who intend to teach and of graduate students in the Department of Education.

Informal in its organization, the work of the society is planned by a group committee consisting of alumni, graduate, and undergraduate students and the moderator, Dr. J. J. Valenti. The Society meets four times a year, providing each time a program consisting of a lecture, discussion, or a panel.

This year's program of activities included a series of lectures by Rev. William Kenealy, S.J., Visiting Professor of Law at Loyola, on "Legal Aspects of School Segregation" and Dr. Joseph Park of Northwestern University on "John Dewey, Exponent of Intellectual Discipline."

EPSILON PI RHO. Standing: E. Robert Olson, Michael Kelly, Daniel J. Snyder. Seated: Dawn Svetich, Gloria Forte, Margaret Conroy, Peggy Jo LaPlante (secretary-treasurer), Dr. D. Herbert Abel (moderator), John E. Lempkowski (co-president), George E. Nix (co-president), John M. Veto, Loretta Krozel, Donna K. Doyle.

EPSILON PI RHO

The antecedents of a civilization are no less important than the civilization itself; things are inevitably more meaningful when considered in terms of that from which they came than when examined solely in themselves.

With this in mind, Epsilon Pi Rho was established to help its members explore the impact of the civilizations of Greece and Rome upon our own, and in so doing, to better appreciate the achievements of both the modern and ancient worlds.

The club's most elaborate activity during the past year was to act as host for the Illinois Latin Tournament on May 2. In addition to organizing and directing the Tournament, several members appeared in a radio play, "Beyond the Pillars of Hercules."

EPSILON PI RHO OFFICERS. John E. Lempkowski, co-president; Dr. D. Herbert Abel, moderator; Peggy Jo LaPlante, secretary-treasurer; George Nix, co-president.

FINE ARTS CLUB

Since its establishment at Loyola in 1953, the Fine Arts Club has made a considerable contribution to the cultural development of its members and of the student body in general. By introducing the students to the many cultural activities in Chicago, the organization has produced many rewarding accomplishments, not the least of which is its annual increase in membership, which now includes students in most of the various colleges at Loyola.

This year the club took advantage of the many diversified cultural attractions in Chicago. Two of its most successful projects were its attendance at the popular stage production, "My Fair Lady," and at the Lyric Opera's production of Verdi's "Aida."

FINE ARTS CLUB OFFICERS. Bob Marlin, president, and Dr. Paul Hummert, moderator.

FINE ARTS CLUB. Standing: Bob Roach, Maury McCarthy, Bill Hegan. Seated: Kay McNeive, Kay Kerrott, Pauline Zaranka.

FOREIGN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION

With approximately a hundred foreign students enrolled in the undergraduate divisions, the Graduate School, and the professional schools, the Foreign Students Association was formed to serve as a medium through which students from various countries could become acquainted with each other and with American students. It is the hope of the organization that through such contacts, social and educational, fellowship and understanding can be promoted.

Among its activities the association sponsors lectures, discussions, and other social events. An annual attraction is a panel discussion with members of the Chicago Junior Chamber of Commerce. Each year the group also produces its Spring Festival, at which the members of the club entertain the spectators with national songs and dances.

FOREIGN STUDENTS ASSOCIATION OFFICERS. Dr. Margaret M. O'Dwyer, moderator; Marcellinus Fredericks (British Guiana), secretary; Rev. Singarayer Fernando (India), president; Remedios Varias (Philippines), vice-president.

Members of the Foreign Students Association attend a reception as the guests of Theta Phi Alpha sorority.

Dr. E. John Clark, assistant professor of the English department, addresses the members of the Gerard Manley Hopkins Society on Geoffrey Chaucer.

HOPKINS SOCIETY OFFICERS. Robert Ryba, secretary-treasurer; Dr. Patrick J. Case, moderator; Thomas M. Haney, president.

GERARD MANLEY HOPKINS SOCIETY

Serving both English majors and those students interested in our literary heritage, the Gerard Manley Hopkins Society is designed to act as a supplement to the students' regular English courses, for it is concerned with increasing the appreciation and understanding of works of literary merit.

Founded at Loyola in 1931, the Society was named the Gerard Manley Hopkins Society after the Jesuit poet who was then becoming known as one of the greatest of the modern poets.

This year's speakers included Mr. Hugh Dickinson of the speech department; Rev. Louis Zabkar of the history and theology faculties; Dr. E. J. Clark of the English department; and Dr. Michael Flys of the modern languages department.

Dr. Harold Emiley, left, discusses his lecture for the Historical Society with some members of the audience.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

In keeping with its aim of serving the University, the History Department, and its members, the Historical Society, the largest undergraduate academic organization at Loyola, presents informative and entertaining programs covering a wide range of subjects. History is brought to life for Society members through stimulating lectures, interesting motion pictures, and addresses by prominent local and national figures.

During the past year, the Society sponsored lectures by such distinguished persons as Dr. K. C. Wu, Dr. Harold Emiley, and Rev. John Fitzgerald, O.S.A. Grati- fied by the enthusiastic support its efforts have received, the Historical Society plans to present programs of equal merit in the future. Membership in the Society is open to all interested Loyola students.

HONORS PROGRAM

The Honors Program offers special opportunities for intellectual achievement on an individualized basis to those students who have high academic qualifications, as well as the ambition and time to devote themselves to an intensive program of studies. The program provides more personal contact with the faculty and friendly association with other superior students who share similar intellectual interests and objectives.

The lower-division curriculum contains the same subjects as any of the regular curricula in the college. But the honors students are given a fuller course of study and a special class section in English, history, speech, logic, and metaphysics in the freshmen and sophomore programs. The upper-division curriculum is determined by the major subject which the student has chosen.

HUMAN RELATIONS CLUB OFFICERS. Standing: Philip K. Martin, president; David Knudsen. Seated: Mary Twohig, Pat Geoghagen.

HUMAN RELATIONS CLUB

Appealing to both general college students and to sociology majors, the programs of the Human Relations Club are designed to acquaint the student body with the various aspects of social phenomena and problem areas.

Dr. Francis Cizon, the present moderator, has initiated a reorganization of the Club by dividing it into several subcommittees, one to deal with each of the various fields of social relations: Racial Relations, Social Psychology, Criminology, Urban Development, Labor and Industrial Relations, and Foreign Affairs. The members of the various subcommittees undertake special projects which range from field trips through factories, courts, and problem areas to actual experience in diversified fields by volunteer employment.

LAKE SHORE SODALITY

The Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary, commonly known as the Lake Shore Campus Sodality, is an offspring of the Jesuit Sodality which was founded at Rome in 1563.

Under the guidance of the Rev. Lester J. Evett, S.J., its moderator, the Sodality has sponsored many spiritual activities during the past year. Prominent among them were such activities as the sixth annual Chicago-Land Collegiate Marian Program on Catholic Leadership, many Holy Hours, and Communion Breakfasts. Apostolic activities of the Sodality included training discussions and visits to hospitals and orphanages. The Sodalists also sponsored a float in this year's Float Parade.

The purpose of these activities is to foster a deep devotion to the Blessed Virgin Mary and develop the true practical Catholic.

LEWIS TOWERS SODALITY

The Lewis Towers Sodality, officially entitled the Queen of the Most Holy Rosary Sodality, is a religious organization which aims at fostering in its members an ardent devotion, reverence, and filial love toward the Blessed Virgin Mary. The formation of zealous, intellectual Catholics is its goal, and for this purpose the sodality offers a social, cultural, and spiritual program. This program is based on the principle that man as a social being is best helped toward his ultimate goal by other people.

During the first semester, the Sodality sponsors three closed retreats for all students. And besides its spiritual activities, the group also participates in an annual Christmas party for seventy-five children and goes caroling at a Chicago hospital.

LOYOLA HALL

Located adjacent to the Lake Shore Campus, Loyola Hall, a $1,500,000 modern three-story building, affords handsome and spacious accommodations for 360 male students and seven Jesuit counselors.

The facilities of the Hall include lounges and recreation rooms, a cafeteria, a chapel, and laundry areas.

Opened three years ago, the dormitory offers a perfect combination of privacy, comfort, convenience, economy, and integration into college life.

Mass and confession are available to the Hall residents. A closed retreat for the residents is also sponsored at the beginning of the school year. In addition to its spiritual benefits, the Hall provides various socials and mixers for the residents and their guests.

Under the leadership of Rev. Edmund Montville, S.J., Loyola Hall has grown to be a vital part of the life of the University.

LOYOLA NEWS

"Keep Campus Conscious" was the by-word for The Loyola News during the 1958-59 academic year. The News, through its editorial pages and general news emphasis, stressed the oneness of the University on all levels of endeavor.

For the first year in the history of The Loyola News the women were featured on a society page designed to help the co-eds keep in touch with the social activities at Loyola and to give hints toward fashion and etiquette.

Four members of the staff attended a newspaper convention at MacMurray College in Jacksonville, Illinois, to sharpen their journalistic talents. The convention, which was held in February, had some of the outstanding experts in Chicago journalism who served as "faculty" members for the conferences.

The technical advisor for the News was Mr. Howard Barry of the sports staff of the Chicago Tribune.

LOYOLA UNION

The Loyola Union is the central student governing body of the University. Since its re-establishment at Loyola twelve years ago, the Union has continued to grow and has markedly contributed to the improvement of student life at the University.

Among the Union's many social activities are the Fall Frolic and Miss Varsity Contest, the Rambler Pow-Wow and Float Parade, the Freshman Invitational Dance, the Loyola Fair, and Senior Week.

In addition, the Union operates the student lounges at Lake Shore and Lewis Towers, bookstores, snackbars, and a catering service.

All students of the University are members of the Union. However, the activities and programs of the Union are under the supervision of the Director, the student congress, and the board of governors. The congress is composed of representatives from all the schools and colleges, the organizations, and the fraternities and sororities of the University. The Board of Governors is the general executive committee of the congress.

THE 1959 LOYOLAN

Founded at Loyola University in 1924, the Loyola Annual, known as THE LOYOLAN, is designed to record the activities and functions which are the very essence of university life at Loyola.

Being all-university in its scope, THE LOYOLAN offers a composite picture of Loyola's colleges and divisions, its clubs and organizations, its fraternities and sororities, and its faculty and administration.

The yearbook provides for all students, and especially for the seniors, a permanent, visual record of Loyola University for the year 1958-59. In the years to come the yearbook will serve to remind the students of the memorable time spent in college at Loyola University.

MARKETING CLUB

Broader student interest in the many-faceted field of merchandising is the aim of the Marketing Club.

Every month, members get a peek at the workaday world when guest speakers who are leaders in the business world address them. Discussion of the problems these men face in the day-to-day conduct of their affairs gives the student a better picture of the economic forces working in today's world, knowledge that is a valuable supplement to the student's classroom work.

In addition, the Club publishes a monthly newsletter, containing news of the marketing field.

Members of the Marketing Club are also members of the American Marketing Association, a nationwide organization.

MATHEMATICS CLUB OFFICERS. Bernie Petosa, Bob Kujala, and Ken Hartmann.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

The members of the Mathematics Club, since its reorganization in 1958, have been working to foster the appreciation of mathematics among members of the student body.

During the past school year, the Club has sponsored three series of lectures: The Foundations of Mathematics, conducted by faculty members; Special Topics in Mathematics, by students; and Opportunities in Mathematics, by guest speakers. The Club additionally conducted a special counseling program during which members were available twice weekly to answer questions or resolve difficulties which students may have had concerning mathematics.

MODERN LANGUAGES CLUB

Because of the importance of cultural exchange between nations, the Modern Languages Club was formed in the fall of 1956. Conversation groups in French, Spanish, and German have helped members gain skill and fluency in the modern languages, and have provided opportunities for an exchange of ideas with students of other countries.

During its monthly meetings the Club has sponsored an address by Dr. LeBlanc, a slide lecture on Spanish art by Dr. Flys, a German Christmas dinner, and movies on Spanish student life. By fostering appreciation of the customs and thought of France, Germany, and Spain, the Modern Languages Club helps fulfill the current need for understanding among nations.

MODERN LANGUAGES CLUB OFFICERS. Kay Cottrell, president; Joseph Wandel, moderator; Sandra Waljeski; Harry Perrun; Mary Endres. Missing: Carol Friend, James Dunne, Mary Spence.

MONOGRAM CLUB OFFICERS. Roy Horton and Frank Hogan.

MONOGRAM CLUB

The Monogram Club, composed of varsity letter winners in Loyola's three major sports (basketball, swimming, and track), aims to foster esprit de corps and a closer bond of friendship among the school's intercollegiate athletic personnel.

During the past year the Club concentrated its efforts on compiling a complete list of Monogram Club members from the old days of football until the present. A complete roster of alumni members has been made from records in the athletic offices, coaches, former Loyolan yearbooks, and—for years in which the Loyolan was not published—from the Loyola News. Meetings of active and alumni monogram men are planned which will draw up a constitution and plan alumni support of athletics and Monogram Club activities.

PHYSICS CLUB. Standing: John McFadyen, Ron O'Brien, Jim Cushing. Seated: Denis Ciesla, George Bart, Fred Wagner, Jim Dowd.

PHYSICS CLUB OFFICERS. Tom Fox, secretary; Frank Tuma, president; Larry Gray, treasurer.

PHYSICS CLUB

Established in 1953 by a group of undergraduate physics majors, Loyola University's Physics Club provides a common meeting ground for students interested in the physical sciences and their applications.

During the past year, to stimulate an extra-curricular interest in physics, the Club sponsored a series of six lectures, and periodic field trips to government and industrial research laboratories. Professional men delivered lectures on seismology, the Greenwich Observatory, the special theory of relativity, operations research, and the tracking of earth satellites; the trips included tours of Republic Steel, Standard Oil Company, and Argonne Laboratories.

The Club's seismographic station, directed by Father Roll, detects and supplies information on earthquakes as far away as Chile, the Aleutian Islands, and Iran.

RECENT DECISIONS

Since 1949 Loyola law students have written and edited the "Recent Decisions" section of the Illinois Bar Journal, the official monthly publication of the Illinois Bar Association. "Recent Decisions" consists of current significant cases decided by the Illinois and Federal Courts. The comments not only report and analyze the cases but also orient them and demonstrate their significance. An addition to the established routine of publishing comments has been adopted this year to correlate the comments of past years to the cases decided subsequently, thus forming an annotation of those prior published comments. John C. Hayes is the faculty moderator. Editor-in-Chief is Ronald P. Kiefer; Associate Editors are Robert J. Klovstad, Helen C. McCabe, and Richard J. Troy.

RECENT DECISIONS STAFF. Robert J. Klovstad; Helen McCabe; Richard Troy; John C. Hayes, faculty adviser; Ronald Kiefer, editor-in-chief.

RES IPSA LOQUITUR

Res Ipsa Loquitur, the student publication of the Law School, has for the past five years served as a vehicle of opinion and dissent for the law student body.

Inspired by a principle of law, Res Ipsa Loquitur ("The Thing Speaks for Itself") has emerged from its often-troubled history as a voice of independence for the law student at Loyola.

Published by the Student Bar Association, the paper has a student circulation of two-hundred and fifty and an ever-expanding alumni circulation of over one thousand in the Chicagoland area.

Thomas O'Bryan has been editor of Res Ipsa Loquitur for the past year.

RES IPSA LOQUITUR STAFF. Thomas Cauley, James Fitzgibbon, John McDonald, Robert Lane, Thomas O'Bryan.

ST. APOLLONIA GUILD OFFICERS. Back row: Thomas Sullivan, Rev. Francis Vaughan, S.J., and Thomas Schneider. Front row: Dr. Joseph Cantaño, Walter Lichota, and Paul Noto. Missing: Al McManama.

SAINT APOLLONIA GUILD

The St. Apollonia Guild is named in honor of a third-century virgin martyr who was seized by the persecutors and by repeated blows had all her teeth broken.

In 1920, the St. Apollonia Guild was founded by a group of dentists in the greater Boston area with the sanction of His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell. Its aim was to care for the dental needs of poor children in and around Boston. The participating dentists lent their services to care for the dental needs of some forty thousand poor children.

The Alpha Chapter was organized in the School of Dentistry in 1924. After four years, the guild became inactive. But in 1934 the Guild was reorganized by the senior dental students under Dr. Jerome Vik.

In a place of honor in the Dental School is the statue of St. Apollonia, the patron of the school's religious society.

SAINT LUKE'S GUILD

Several years ago, to ensure their own spiritual development as well as a proper understanding of typical moral problems, a group of medical students banded together, with Father John W. Bieri as their moderator, to form the Alpha Chapter of St. Luke's Student Guild.

To accomplish its twofold goal, the Guild sponsors regular spiritual exercises and bi-monthly meetings. A guest speaker or a movie is usually featured at one meeting of the month, the other being devoted to business and discussion of medical, moral, and social issues of general interest.

The professional life for which the medical student prepares himself is one filled with moral crises. The men who support the St. Luke's Guild realize that in so doing, they will better be able to become good Catholic physicians.

SOCIETY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF MANAGEMENT

Under the guidance of Dr. Peter T. Swanish since 1950, the Management Club has progressed to a position of eminence among similar clubs in schools throughout the Chicago area. Last year the Loyola Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management won the Chicago Area Award, a large rotating trophy, for the best chapter in the city. The Club hopes to keep the trophy at Loyola this year.

The Club's most ambitious activity during the past year has been to present as speakers experts on as many phases of business activity as possible. This project, in turn, has been supplemented by tours of such corporations as Texaco Refineries, A. O. Smith, Nabisco, and U. S. Steel.

STUDENT AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

The Student American Medical Association is the largest student medical group in the world. Founded in December, 1950, 72 schools constitute its membership today.

The objects of the Association are to advance the medical profession, to contribute to the welfare and education of medical students, to familiarize its members with the purposes and ideals of organized medicine, and to prepare them to meet the social and ethical obligations of the medical profession.

The Loyola Chapter of the S.A.M.A. conducts monthly meetings highlighted by motion pictures concerning various areas of research and the diagnosis and treatment of disease entities. During the current year, a chapter constitution was adopted, student directories were printed and distributed, and current medical literature was circulated to the Association members.

STUDENT DENTAL ASSOCIATION

Patterned after the American Dental Association, the Student A.D.A. of Loyola is designed to promote dental education among its members. Each class has four representatives on the executive council, which is the governing body setting the program of events for the year.

Student A.D.A. activities have included three dinner meetings, featuring guest lecturers Dr. Harry Sicher, Dr. Nicholas Brescia, and Dr. Marshall Smulson, members of the dental faculty. Another annual event is the Clinic Day, which presents original student displays on particular phases of dentistry.

Closing the year's program, the Honors Banquet witnessed the bestowing of academic and clinical awards to the top students.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE SODALITY

The Madonna della Strada Sodality, primarily a religious organization, is designed for men and women of the University College.

Like the Society of Jesus, on whose rules it is modeled, it aims "at the salvation and perfection of one's own soul and that of one's neighbor."

In addition to bi-monthly spiritual meetings it sponsors two days of recollection and an annual closed retreat for the night school men and women. Its other activities include the Apostleship of Prayer, a discussion club, a Christmas party for orphans, Thanksgiving baskets for the poor, two mixers for the night school students, and other social activities.

The officers of the Sodality are: Vic Colucci, prefect; Josephine Valenti, co-prefect; Sue Finigan, secretary; and Henry Liese, treasurer.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE SODALITY OFFICERS. Standing: Henry Liese, treasurer; Marilyn Zefran, social chairman; Sue Finigan, secretary; and James Schiltz, spiritual chairman. Seated: Victor Colucci, prefect; Rev. Joseph F. Hogan, S.J., moderator; Josephine Valenti, co-prefect.

VETERANS CLUB

Besides fulfilling its primary function as a social organization providing an outlet for veterans at Loyola, the Veterans Club also serves to provide information pertinent to veterans' affairs both at Loyola and in personal matters. This latter service is made available through the cooperation of the Loyola representative of the Veterans Administration, Eugene Knight.

Social events, however, are the club's main function. Besides supporting general university activities, the organization sponsors its own smokers, parties, and dances, as well as an annual Communion Breakfast for its members. The highlight of the year for the Veterans Club is its annual Veterans Dance, at which Miss Veteran is presented with a bronze combat boot.

VETERANS CLUB OFFICERS. John Owens, vice-president; Joseph Taylor, president; Hugh McAvoy, moderator; Andrew Kelly, treasurer.

On a nice spring day, the members of the Veterans Club gather in front of Lewis Towers to soak up the sunshine and discuss veterans' affairs.

Between classes, one can always find the veterans in the lounge catching up on their "studies."

WASMANN BIOLOGICAL SOCIETY

The Wasmann Biological Society honors the memory of Erich Wasmann, a Jesuit philosopher-scientist, world famous for his writings on comparative animal psychology. The Society at Loyola was founded in November, 1940, by Father Charles Widemann, S.J.

Besides encouraging general interest in biological studies, the Society puts special emphasis on student research. To its outstanding members the Society awards the Wasmann Key and a certificate of recognition.

This year's activities included a full round of special scientific lectures and movies, a counseling service for freshmen, the initiation dinner, and communion breakfasts. Highlighting its work the Society presented the Annual Biology Fair, open to the students and the general public.

WOMEN'S RESIDENCE HALL

The Women's Residence Hall offers a combination of comfort, convenience, and economy which makes it a model of urban college dormitories.

Situated a block east of famed Michigan Avenue, the women's residence is a part of the city's Gold Coast. Lake Michigan lies a block to the east of the Hall, Lewis Towers a block to the west. Loyola's Lake Shore Campus is a convenient twenty-minute ride by public transportation. Chicago's Loop, with its outstanding stores and theatres, is a few minutes' walk away.

In adapting the building to a suitable women's dormitory, a considerable amount of remodeling was done that it would be well equipped to provide for the various needs of the women students. Under the direction of Mrs. Leona Rantfl, the dormitory has continued to maintain the home-away-from-home atmosphere desired by the residents.

The women students at the Hall have done their part by forming a dorm council to enforce their self-made laws. This spirit of cooperation has been the very essence of Loyola's women's residence.

Chicago's position as the nation's crossroads extends to the field of finance as well as transportation, trade, and communications. The Midwest Stock Exchange is the largest outside of New York; six of America's largest commercial banks are located here. The Chicago Board of Trade transacts 18 billion dollars worth of business each year, providing a sound base of operation for the many prominent investment bankers and brokers who have their headquarters in the city.

Loyola's fraternal and social organizations, described in the following pages, provide their members with a sense of social responsibility necessary for careers in the financial world.

GREEKS

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Composed of all undergraduate fraternity and sorority congressmen of the Union student congress, the Interfraternity Council deals with the problems, activities, and matters concerning the undergraduate fraternities and sororities.

The Interfraternity Council's most important duty is the supervision of fraternity and sorority rushing and pledging. In addition, the Council is responsible for regulating and studying all undergraduate fraternity and sorority problems and relations.

The Council, a permanent subcommittee of the Union's Committee on Interfraternity Relations, is under the chairmanship of a member of the Council who is elected by the group. The other elected officers of the Council are a secretary and a treasurer.

ALPHA DELTA GAMMA

Since its inception at Loyola University in 1924, Alpha Delta Gamma has become the largest National Catholic-College Social Fraternity in the United States.

The fraternity was founded with a three-fold purpose in mind: of affording the social advantages of a fraternity to students of high morals and high ideals, of promoting and supporting all activities of Loyola University, and of effecting a stronger bond among similarly inclined students of the University.

In coordination with their policy of active participation in University activities, Alpha Delta Gamma initiated and has continued to promote its Annual Orphans' Day program, in which all of the fraternities and sororities of the University extend their fraternal hand to those less fortunate.

In addition to its many smokers, parties, and fraternal activities, Alpha Delta Gamma sponsors its annual Thanksgiving Dance for the students of the University.

The fraternity's successes this year included a first-place victory in the Interfraternity Sing and two first-place trophies for its entry in the annual Float Parade.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI

Gamma Iota Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi Professional Fraternity in Commerce was established at Loyola University in 1952. The chapter has consistently endeavored to maintain a fine professional attitude among its members and to further the welfare of Commerce students at Loyola. The chapter conducts an annual program for all Commerce sophomores entitled "Career Days," which consists of bringing speakers from the business world to give the students a practical outlook on the various fields on concentration in the College of Commerce. Professional meetings and other such events of a professional nature are held throughout the year for the benefit of the brothers and pledges.

In keeping with the background of a Catholic university, the chapter sponsors a Communion Breakfast each semester for the members and their fathers. Another annual event of the fraternity is its Research Project, this year entitled "How Various Students Apportion Their Time," a project which has attracted much attention from the administration of the university.

Among the social events of a school year for Alpha Kappa Psi are the annual Halloween Costume Party, the New Year's Eve Party, a St. Patrick's Day Party, and a Golf Outing on the night after the final exams in June.

ALPHA OMEGA

That ideal which Alpha Omega, the first national Jewish dental fraternity, endeavors to achieve is best expressed by its motto: "Harmonia, Amor, et Veritas," Harmony, Love, and Truth. These words were the inspiration of a small group of pioneers who founded Alpha Omega in 1907 at the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery.

From a fraternity numbering four members, Alpha Omega has grown into an organization boasting seventy-five chapters with over five thousand members. It has been a welcomed addition to the field of dentistry. Its rapid growth is a credit to both its founders and its members.

The Alpha Lambda Chapter of Alpha Omega was organized at the Loyola School of Dentistry in 1932 and has, since that time, assumed proportions far and above the fondest dreams of its founders.

Alpha Lambda Chapter prides itself in not only aiding its members in preparing themselves for their chosen profession, but also in maintaining their social life. Each year the fraternity fills its calendar with events such as smokers, a Halloween Dance, and an April dinner-dance. It also sponsors many activities appealing to both the cultural and professional interests of all its members.

ALPHA TAU DELTA

Xi Chapter of Alpha Tau Delta National Fraternity for women in nursing was organized at Loyola in 1956 and was officially installed on campus in 1957.

The purposes of Alpha Tau Delta are to promote higher professional standards in the field of nursing; to develop the profession through an improved program of nursing education; and to form a close bond of friendship, fellowship, helpfulness, and understanding among women in the nursing profession.

Chapters of Alpha Tau Delta are located at those universities and colleges which offer a basic course in nursing on the college level. The fraternity was founded at the University of California at Berkeley in 1921. Since that time, the fraternity has been active in promoting the five-year nursing program for prospective nurses; at the present time, this program has been reduced to four years.

Among the activities and projects undertaken by the fraternity during the past year were a series of lectures and several charitable programs. In addition, Alpha Tau Delta participated in the 1959 Pow-Wow and the Loyola Fair.

Although the fraternity is relatively new on the campus, it has displayed its potential to a remarkable degree, for example, by winning the SAL award for its service to the university in recruiting new students.

BLUE KEY HONOR FRATERNITY

Blue Key National Honor Fraternity was founded at the University of Florida in 1924. Since that time it has come to be accepted as the leadership equivalent of scholarly Phi Beta Kappa. Its membership now totals more than 35,000.

The Loyola Chapter of Blue Key was established in 1926 through the efforts of Rev. Robert C. Hartnett, S.J., Dr. William P. Schoen, and Dr. Paul S. Lietz. Since its founding at Loyola, the fraternity has functioned as an honorary leadership organization.

Three years ago, the local chapter was reorganized as a service group designed to assist the administration and faculty and to support and encourage all student organizations. Blue Key members have been appointed permanent student marshals for all Convocations and Commencements and have represented the Dean of Admissions in the Chicago-area high schools for the recruitment of new students.

Each year the Blue Key Chapter selects and bestows an award upon the Faculty Man of the Year, the Organization of the Year, and the student groups which have most distinguished themselves in the fields of academic, cultural, and social activity, respectively.

New members are initiated at the chapter's annual dinner-dance, which was held this year at the Lake Shore Club.

CHI THETA UPSILON

Approved by the University in May, 1958, Chi Theta Upsilon is the newest sorority at Loyola. It is open to women students on both campuses.

Members of Chi Theta hold positions of responsibility in the Debate Society, Students Associates of Loyola, Coed Club, Sodality, and on the staff of the Loyola News. With youthful enthusiasm Chi Theta has adopted the various activities at Loyola as its own projects. As a proof of success, Chi Theta holds the S.A.L. plaque for obtaining the highest possible potential of all organizations contributing to S.A.L.'s program. Chi Theta has participated in all major functions of the school year. Its members took part in the Ugly Man Contest and the Miss Varsity Contest in which the sorority boasted several candidates. The sorority was represented at the Float Parade, one of the most important events of the year.

At the beginning of the school year a dinner was given in honor of the moderator of the sorority, Miss Rosemarie Donatelli. Charter members were formally inducted in November. Among other "firsts" for Chi Theta were the rushing teas, a party given for a poor family at Christmas time, and a formal dance held in May. Members also enjoyed a winter carnival and several parties.

DELTA SIGMA DELTA

Delta Sigma Delta, the oldest dental fraternity in existence, was founded at the University of Michigan on November 15, 1882. Three years later, under the direction of L. L. Davis, Beta Chapter was established at the Chicago College of Dental Surgery. This date, March 24, 1885, marks the entrance of the fraternity into the dental profession in the Mid-west.

Delta Sigma Delta can claim the honor of having had members of the fraternity in administrative capacities within the School of Dentistry from its beginning to the present time. It is very proud of this record.

As part of its social program, the fraternity sponsors an all-school picnic, as well as a Christmas party and a St. Patrick's Day party.

Delta Sigma Delta exists for its members, and its members, realizing this fact, have continually devoted themselves to maintaining the honor of the fraternity. They have accomplished this end by initiating into their ranks members who have maintained the tradition which has always been characteristic of Delta Sigma Delta.

DELTA SIGMA PI

Delta Sigma Pi successfully manages to guide its members towards careers in business and at the same time to plan their social activities here at Loyola.

Founded at New York University in 1907, this international fraternity's purpose is to promote closer affiliation between commerce students and the commercial world. Loyola's chapter, Gamma Pi, accomplishes this goal through professional tours, speakers, and movies scheduled throughout the year. The highlight of the fraternity's social program is the Rose Mixer at which is chosen the girl who reigns as the Rose of Delta Sigma Pi for the year.

In addition, the fraternity holds parties, hayrides, beach parties, and picnics. Members attend a semi-annual national convention and an annual regional convention. Delta Sig's active interest in athletics has won for it the Intramural Banner and numerous trophies.

The fraternity maintains a Key Club at 115 East Chicago Avenue which is used for meetings and as a lounge for members. The Key Club is the only facility of its kind operated by any fraternity in the Lewis Towers area. During the 1957-58 academic year, Delta Sigma Pi earned the "Organization of the Year" award given by Blue Key.

KAPPA BETA GAMMA

Sisterhood in Kappa Beta Gamma is indicative of a liaison which cannot be derived from mere membership in an organization. It connotes a working together, praying together, learning together, and enjoying together.

This national, social sorority was founded at Marquette University in 1917. Since the establishment of Epsilon chapter at Loyola in 1954, coeds have been afforded an opportunity to develop a strong bond of friendship while working for degrees. Active participation in later years is made possible through the alumnae chapters.

During the academic year, Kappa sponsors novel rushing teas, numerous parties, and a Winter Dinner Dance. The spiritual aspect is not neglected, however. The Kappa-sponsored retreat, Communion breakfasts, interest in charitable projects, and weekly rosary all give testimony to this.

Among the projects sponsored this year were a prize-winning entry in the Float Parade, a sparkling Variety Show act, and a raffle booth for the Loyola Fair.

Kappans display their "school spirit" through their membership and offices in Loyola-centered organizations, such as the SAL program, Maroon and Gold, Coed Club, Sodality, Curtain Guild, Fine Arts Club, and varied academic groups.

PHI ALPHA DELTA

Lambda Epsilon Fraternity, Phi Alpha Delta's predecessor, was quite aptly named: Lambda for law and Epsilon for equity. The founders of Lambda Epsilon had as their dream the establishment of a law fraternity which would one day be one of the greatest in the nation.

When it was seen that there were serious defects in the original constitution of the fraternity, a convention was held in South Haven, Michigan, which eventually dissolved Lambda Epsilon and drew up a new set of articles for a new fraternity which was to be named Phi Alpha Delta. On November 8, 1902, the constitution and by-laws of Phi Alpha Delta were formally adopted.

Within a month, the Webster Chapter of the fraternity was organized at Loyola University School of Law. The chapter has been extremely active ever since its establishment, except for a period during World War II when law school operations were temporarily suspended.

The present chapter is composed of approximately eighty members from both the day and evening divisions of the School of Law. A harmonious organization has been effected which evokes full cooperation from the individual members to work for the good of Phi Alpha Delta.

PHI BETA PI

Phi Beta Pi dates back to 1891, when its Alpha Chapter was organized at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. Alpha Omega Chapter was brought to Loyola's Stritch School of Medicine in 1921. At present, the fraternity has thirty-two chapters in medical schools throughout the United States.

The history of the Alpha Omega Chapter is as illustrious as that of the fraternity itself. Particularly noteworthy is the fact that Dr. L. D. Moorehead, one of the chapter's founders and former Dean of Loyola's Medical School, achieved greatness in the medical profession. Today this medical genius is commemorated in the annual Moorehead lectureship of Phi Beta Pi.

Alpha Omega maintains a chapter house for its members at 6341 North Sheridan Road. Here, the burdens of medical school life are alleviated by the congenial fellowship which exists within the ranks of the fraternity. It is also here that the 110 members gather at the various professional and social events sponsored by the fraternity for a few moments of well-earned relaxation.

The members of Phi Beta Pi are ever grateful to the invaluable contribution the fraternity has made in aiding them to reach the fullness of their profession.

PHI CHI

Phi Sigma Chapter of Phi Chi National Medical fraternity dates from 1907 when it was founded as a local medical fraternity. Shortly after its inception, the members of this small but active group expressed a desire to affiliate themselves with the national organization of Phi Chi. The Chapter had its birth at the twelfth national convention of Phi Chi held the following year in Baltimore.

At present, the fraternity has a total active membership of approximately one hundred and forty, most of which is housed in the fraternity quarters at 712 S.

Ashland Blvd. These quarters are composed of three houses, two of which have been consolidated into one fraternity unit where a bulk of its activities are centered.

In spite of the large size of the organization, the members of Phi Chi show an unusual closeness. This spirit is motivated by the friendship naturally acquired under the fraternity system, as well as the constant sharing of personal interests in the medical profession. This unique relationship among its members has given Phi Chi a distinct quality fostered by its members and respected by all who come within its scope.

PHI MU CHI

The oldest social fraternity at Loyola, Phi Mu Chi has completed its thirty-seventh year on campus, maintaining that tradition which requires active participation in all campus activities.

The fraternity began the social year with a dance on registration day. During the year, it sponsored several other parties and dances, including a Halloween party and the annual dinner dance. To culminate the social year, the fraternity sponsors the Easter Queenship Ball.

In addition to these purely social activities, the fraternity sponsors several Communion breakfasts. The spiritual aspect is given serious consideration by Phi Mu Chi in keeping with the purposes for which it was founded: to promote moral and social culture.

Phi Mu Chi is responsible for many firsts at Loyola. It was the first social fraternity on campus. It also sponsored the first off-campus dance, thus establishing a precedent which other fraternities have followed. Today off-campus dances are the backbone of Loyola's social life.

This year Phi Mu Chi enjoyed a highly successful year under the leadership of Rev. J. Donald Roll, S.J., moderator; Mike Walton, president; Tom Wedig, vice-president; and Peter Wagner, treasurer.

PI ALPHA LAMBDA

For the past thirty-five years, the social fraternity of Pi Alpha Lambda has maintained the ideals upon which it was founded—loyalty to God, Loyola, and Fraternity. From the year in which it was established by Rev. James J. Mertz, S.J., the history of the fraternity has been one of success—success spiritually, scholastically, athletically, and socially.

Today Pi Alpha Lambda is one of the largest and oldest social fraternities at Loyola. To sustain its traditional integrity, it has always desired and sought out the cream of Loyola's men. This never ending search has accounted for Pi Alpha Lambda's respected position among the many organizations at Loyola. The end result which the fraternity endeavors to produce in its members can be simply stated—the whole man.

During the past year, Pi Alpha Lambda has been participating in all school functions and in the promotion of new ideas in fraternity activities. Such events as the second annual Intercollegiate Dance and such honors as the fourth consecutive crowning of the Pi Alpha candidate for Miss Varsity have afforded just pride to the members of the organization.

PSI OMEGA

Psi Omega dental fraternity has a two-fold purpose: first, to develop membership devoted to its profession, school, and fraternity; second, to aid its members in pursuing their professional, social, and cultural desires. Psi Omega feels justified in boasting the accomplishment of its ambitions.

The fraternity has become an integral part of the Loyola School of Dentistry. Academically, its members have shown their excellence by maintaining a consistently high level of scholastic achievement.

In addition to cultivating the professional aspirations of its members, Psi Omega maintains a program of social events which begin with those functions at which the fraternity welcomes incoming freshmen into the School of Dentistry. The freshmen open house, freshmen smoker, and freshmen pledge banquet are the leading events on the social calendar of the fraternity.

Psi Omega is proud of its past record; its members look confidently to the future.

Activities, which are the student's complement and fulfillment, are the balance of the curriculum at Loyola. The foremost purpose of Sigma Alpha Rho is to promote student interest in these activities.

Founded in 1956, Sigma Alpha Rho is the "night school" sorority of Loyola. The sorority endeavors to promote a closer relationship between its members and the University. All women in the University College are eligible to benefit from this organization.

This year Sigma Alpha Rho has given many leaders to the University College. From its membership the students have elected the president and vice president of the University College Council and three of the council members. Four representatives of the University College to the Loyola Union have been selected from Sigma Alpha Rho. In addition to supporting many projects sponsored by the various organizations of Loyola, Sigma Alpha Rho has a program designed to enrich the social and intellectual life of its members and to aid them in their future plans. Sigma Alpha Rho fulfills its goal by stressing the religious, academic, and social opportunities of Loyola, and the various programs which the University sponsors, in addition to the activities organized by the sorority itself.

SIGMA DELTA PHI

Sigma Delta Phi is the newest social fraternity at Loyola, presently on probationary status. After a year on campus, it will be able to apply to the Interfraternity Council for official recognition.

Sigma Delta Phi was founded as a local fraternity on January 2, 1958, when its nine founders pledged to uphold a constitution which is guaranteed to benefit its members academically, morally, physically, and socially.

During 1958, the fraternity grew from its original nine members to over thirty. Among the major events sponsored by the group was a trip to Cleveland for the Loyola-John Carroll game. Besides this, the fraternity also provided numerous parties, mixers, picnics, and a three-day vacation at Lake Geneva, Wisconsin. The group also entered a float in this year's Pow-Wow. An open dance was held at the Palmer House on April 4.

Ken Sain, whose idea led to the founding of the fraternity, was elected its first president. Rev. Marcellus Monaco is the group's moderator. Among the other officers of Sigma Delta Phi are Dick Cegielski, administrative vice-president; Joe Bicek, executive vice-president; Steve Cenek, treasurer; and Dan Grant, secretary.

SIGMA LAMBDA BETA

While Sigma Lambda Beta is today one of Loyola's smallest fraternities it is likewise one of the oldest. The fraternity was chartered and incorporated on February 1, 1927, by a group of undergraduate students from the College of Commerce, then located on Franklin Street.

However, the growth of the fraternity revealed that its strictly local status was not fulfilling the needs of its members nor the College of Commerce. Thus in the spring of 1952, Sigma Lambda Beta applied for and received recognition as a chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi, National Commerce Fraternity.

Today, Sigma Lambda Beta enjoys the reputation of being one of the very active undergraduate organizations. In recent years, past officers of the fraternity have twice held the highest office in the Loyola Union, as well as other important Union positions.

Repeatedly, members of the fraternity have served in offices of the University College Student Association and have been very instrumental in helping to fulfill the needs of an expanded and growing University College.

SIGMA PI ALPHA

Sigma Pi Alpha, a local social fraternity, was founded in 1932 to promote intellectual and social interest among its members and to provide for their development, both spiritually and physically, in an atmosphere of friendship and cooperation.

This year the fraternity has tried to live up to these high ideals by projects such as its Springfield trip. The tour of Springfield and the surrounding countryside proved to be of exceptional value to all students who attended it. Open to all students of the university, the journey acquainted the Loyolans with an area rich in relics of American history and of one of our greatest presidents, Abraham Lincoln.

During the fall semester, Sigma Pi Alpha initiated a drive for funds for the victims of the tragic fire at Our Lady of the Angels School. Loyolans contributed a thousand dollars in response to this appeal.

Besides its two special projects, Sigma Pi Alpha held its annual "Spring Nocturne" dance, at which the fraternity presented its "Fraternity Man of the Year" award to the fraternity member who best exemplified the aims and ideals of his fraternity. Numerous parties and socials rounded out the social year for the fraternity.

A look at the imposing list of Tau Delta Phi's activities of the year demonstrates the reason why it has won the Blue Key social organization award for the past two years.

Early in the first semester, United States Congressman Charles A. Boyle, a prominent Loyola alumnus, was initiated into the fraternity as an honorary frater. Many outstanding city and state officials were present at the reception held for Congressman Boyle at the fraternity house.

For the first time among Loyola fraternities, Tau Delta Phi sponsored bus trips to the basketball games played at the Universities of Notre Dame and Marquette. The fraternity has also contributed to Loyola spirit by its continued policy of developing friendly bonds among both the student body and the faculty. The annual faculty reception, which has become a tradition at Loyola, was again a Tau Delt success.

Another reception was given by the fraternity for the debaters of the National Jesuit College Debate Tournament held at Loyola in November. In the belief that all fraternities at Loyola have common interests, Tau Delta Phi again sponsored its popular Interfraternity Sing Contest. The fraternity also enjoyed an active social season for its fraters and pledges.

TAU KAPPA EPSILON

The Epsilon Kappa Chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon is in its third year on the Loyola campus and enjoys a prominent position among the organizations of the University. Starting from its humble origins in 1938 as the University Club, the Epsilon Kappa Chapter has progressed to the dynamic fraternity it is today.

In the fall semester of 1958 the TEKES moved into a fifteen-room house adjoining the Lake Shore Campus, fulfilling a dream of many years. The fraternity also has a summer cottage at Power's Lake, Wisconsin, which affords the brothers a varied year-round activity.

Among the TEKE-sponsored activities of the year are the annual Halloween Ugly Man Mixer with its Ugly Man Contest for the benefit of the Patna Missions, the St. Patrick's Day Dance in conjunction with the TEKE Sweetheart Contest, the Co-ed Tea, and faculty lectures at the fraternity house.

This year the TEKES have won various awards in school activities, among them a first place trophy for the best house decorations during the Pow-Wow festivities and an award for their entry in the Float Parade.

The Epsilon Kappa Chapter also received recognition from the National Interfraternity Council for top academic achievement among the national fraternities on campus.

The third fraternity at Loyola to acquire a fraternity house, Tau Kappa Epsilon has established itself at 6229 No. Winthrop.

THETA PHI ALPHA

Founded in 1942 at Loyola, Upsilon chapter of Theta Phi Alpha is the oldest and largest sorority on campus. Theta Phi is the only national Catholic social sorority, and the only sorority at Loyola, in the National Pan-Hellenic Conference. The moderator of the chapter is Miss Mary Lou McPartlin and the chaplain is Rev. Lester J. Evett, S.J. Miss Joan Vaccaro, Loyola's assistant dean of women, was this year elected National Director of Extension of Theta Phi Alpha.

Theta Phi's social calendar was opened with a cocktail party, the "September Sip," at the Roof Garden of the St. Clair Hotel. Each semester began with a rushing party and was closed with a formal initiation, which this year was held at the Ambassador West Hotel. One of the most successful school parties of the year was Theta Phi's "Player of the Night" party after the Loyola-Marquette game. Trophies were awarded to the player of the night from each team. The annual formal dance, the White Rose Ball, climaxed the social year.

Besides its own activities, Theta Phi also participated in the various school events of the year, such as the Interfraternity Sing, the Ugly Man Contest, and the Hoola-Hoop Contest. Five Theta Phi girls were candidates in the Miss Varsity contest, and one of them, Roxane Slaski, was chosen Miss Varsity.

XI PSI PHI

The Lambda Chapter of Xi Psi Phi was established at Loyola in 1930. That the present undergraduate membership of Xi Psi Phi is surpassed by no other Loyola Dental Fraternity is indicated by the organization's many functions. In addition to house parties, lectures, and the annual formal, the "Zips" sponsor a yearly golf outing which is open to the entire faculty and student body.

The objectives of Xi Psi Phi are professional and social development, and greater school unity. The fraternity also has an auxiliary division, the "Zippettes," composed of the wives and fiancées of its members. They serve the fraternity by arranging refreshments and decorations for social activities, and providing clerical work for reviews. The alumni division provides encouragement and ideas for improvement of the members, the fraternity, and the school.

The Xi Psi Phi Quarterly unifies all the chapters and gives each group the opportunity to publish the results of its activities, and to view the development and accomplishments of other chapters.

ALPHA SIGMA NU

The three-fold requirement for membership in Alpha Sigma Nu gives the Society a high place among honorary fraternities. A student, to be eligible for membership, must rank in the upper twenty-five per cent of his class, and must, in addition, demonstrate a devotion to scholarship, a loyalty to principle, and a capacity for service of the highest order.

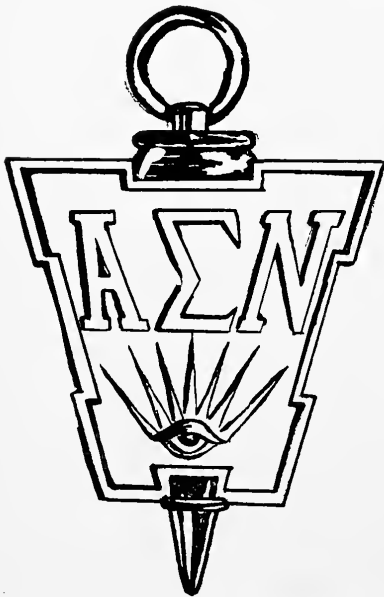

Alpha Sigma Nu was founded at Marquette University in 1915 by the Rev. John A. Danihy, S.J. The Society continued as a local organization until 1921 when Creighton University was invited to join, and a Chapter was installed there on December 18, 1921.

On April 5, 1938, a Chapter of Alpha Sigma Nu was installed at Loyola University. Since then, over three hundred alumni of the fraternity at Loyola have filled positions which reflect the high esteem of their colleagues in the professions and in the world of business.

Alpha Sigma Nu, in addition to giving recognition to the outstanding qualities of its members, actively assists their continued development both within the University and the world beyond it.

HONORARY SOCIETY FOR WOMEN

Last year the first Women's Leadership Honor Society, newly named "Circumference," was inaugurated at Loyola University. The purpose of this society is to give united service to the University whenever called upon.

The undergraduate deans and moderators of organizations of which there are women members recommend for nomination those junior and senior women students who they feel are demonstrating outstanding leadership and service to their organization, college, and University. An acceptable academic average is expected of all candidates.

The members of the Women's Leadership Honor Society represent all divisions of the undergraduate colleges: the College of Arts and Sciences, Lewis Towers and Lake Shore Campuses; the College of Commerce; University College; and the School of Nursing, including both the full-time basic program and the supplemental program. The society is under the direction of the Dean of Women.

PHI SIGMA TAU

Phi Sigma Tau is the official honor society for college men and women interested in philosophy. It contains twenty-five chapters, and the only Catholic university to have a chapter is Loyola.

Established at Loyola in 1955, Phi Sigma Tau is designed to serve as a means of awarding distinction to students having high scholarship, to promote student interest in research and advanced study, to provide opportunities for publication of student research papers, and to popularize interest in philosophy among the general collegiate public.

The Society meets four times a year. Each meeting features a lecture by a professor from Loyola or some other university.

PHI SIGMA TAU OFFICERS. Robert Walsh, president, and Rev. Robert W. Mulligan, S.J., moderator.

PI DELTA EPSILON

Pi Delta Epsilon, founded at Syracuse University in 1909, is an honorary fraternity designed to reward the student journalist for his efforts, services, and accomplishments.

In the latter part of 1958, a group of students on the staffs of the LOYOLAN, Cadence, and The Loyola News formed an organization to petition Pi Delta Epsilon to establish a chapter at Loyola. On May 29, final arrangements were concluded with the national headquarters, and a Loyola chapter of Pi Delta Epsilon was officially established.

The founders of the Loyola Chapter are Robert Cahill, Robert Doherty, Thomas Haney, William Hegan, Kenneth Klein, Sally Lawrence, Richard Lisk, Robert Marlin, Robert Ryba, Frank Smith, and Charles Vygantas.

The Roman satirist Juvenal wrote that the truly fortunate person commands mens sana in corpore sano, a sound mind within a sound body.

That Juvenal's motto is part of Jesuit education is demonstrated by Loyola's active support of both intramural and intercollegiate sports.

LOYOLA SPORTS

Athletics is a form of social activity. To the non-participant, the tension of an athletic conflict, with the outcome to be determined before his eyes, separates him from the preoccupations of ordinary life and causes him to focus his entire attention on the struggle of reflexes on the playing field. Psychologists call this a release, while the loyal sports fan looks upon it as a struggle of human nature.

If the spectator gains from the athletic contest, the athlete profits in even greater measure, for in his hands rests the outcome of the struggle. In every phase of the struggle the mind must completely control the body. For this is the beauty of sports, the champion completely in control of his body, not only a mark of a champion on the athletic field but in life.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

As preseason reports indicated, the future for George Ireland's Ramblers looked bright. A strong team of experienced veterans and promising sophomores, led by Clarence Red, predicted sufficient experience and bench strength to compensate for the height deficit and youthful inexperience which plagued the Rambler teams of the past seasons. The optimism of the team spread to the student body who, dreaming of a tournament invitation, began to look toward the season's opener with great anticipation. Loyola emerged from its 1958-59 debut victorious, having defeated Carleton 79-65, but the optimism which had surrounded the team before had been dampened by the definite news that the services of Jim Gorman would be lost for the duration of the season.

The Ramblers returned from their first road trip with their first defeat, a 64-59 loss to Eastern Kentucky. Thus, with a record of 5-1, a Loyola team still searching for an efficient scoring combination met Seattle, last year's NCAA tournament runner-up. In this, the first of their five games to be played in the Chicago Stadium, the Ramblers, held scoreless in the early moments of play, experienced a definite setback as they were unable to match the scoring prowess of the Chieftains from the Northwest. Loyola fell in defeat 70-49. Subsequent games found the Ramblers sweeping past Western Michigan, but going down in defeat at the hands of Marquette, Air Force Academy, Duquesne, and Notre Dame.

Searching for their first Stadium victory and an end to a five-game losing streak, Loyola entered the Stadium against Toledo. The Ramblers, unable to hold on to an early lead, fell 80-78. The following week Loyola again appeared at the Stadium but this time without the services of Al Norville, the high-scoring forward who last year and early in the current season had proved highly instrumental in Rambler victories. Still the spirited Ramblers, led by Frank Hogan's scoring, handed St. John's of Brooklyn their worst defeat of the season, 95-85, in a game that required two overtimes. The inspired Ramblers then journeyed to Omaha and kept the flames of victory burning by defeating Creighton for the second time 59-57. Returning to the Stadium, Coach Ireland's men sought to avenge their earlier loss to Marquette, but the Warriors proved to be too much for the injury-ridden Maroon

Al Norville reaches high but has the ball snared out of his hands by Keith Sterk of Western Michigan. This was the first of two defeats that the Broncos suffered at the hands of Loyola, 113-91 and 84-81.

Ron Schwingen, vexed at the fast Seattle man who managed to sneak by, could not do much to stop the Chieftains in their 70-49 victory over Loyola.

Tom O'Connor grabs the loose ball high in the air, but Loyola still suffered their first home court defeat at the hand of the Flying Falcon of the Air Force Academy.

Fine hooking and all-around hustle by Greg Griffin in the Marquette game merited him the selection of Player of the Night Award.

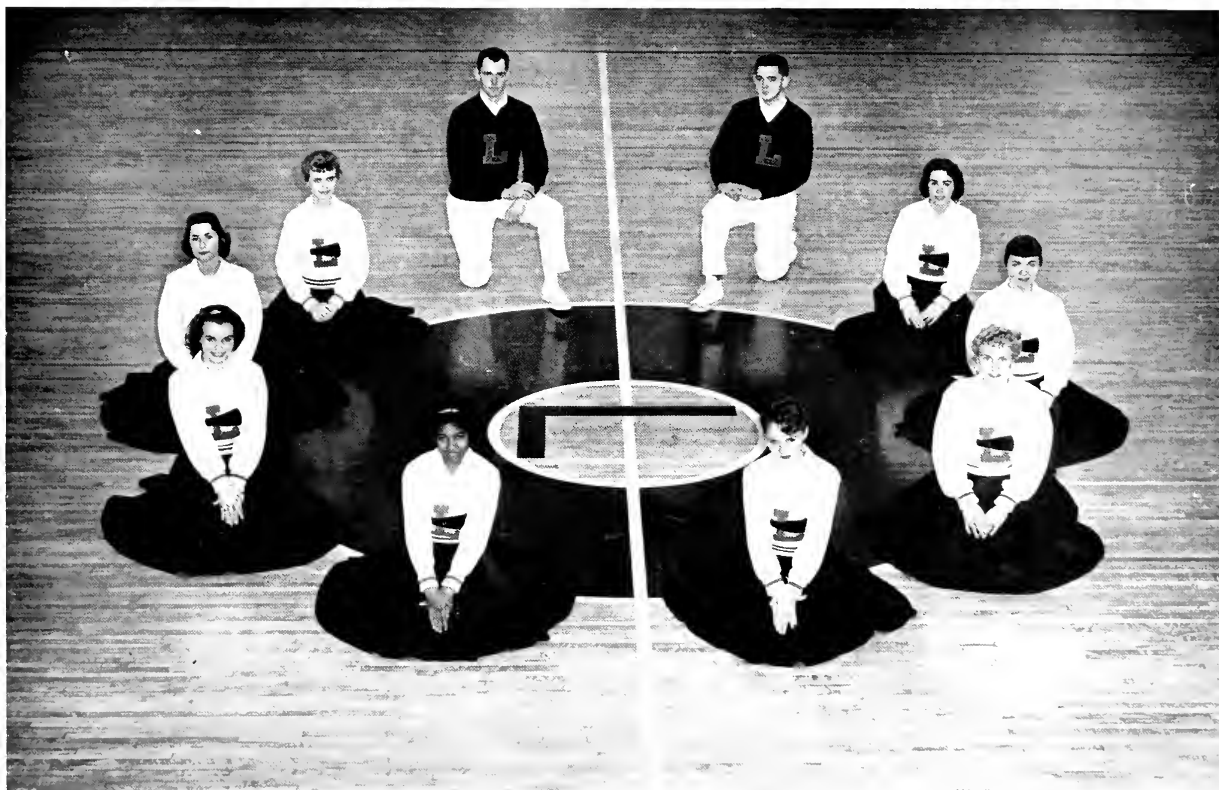

With three on one, Loyola, aided by the long fingers of Clarence Red, increased its score by two points. Greg Griffin (32) helps, while Al Denenberg looks on.

The Ramblers were on the move as Greg Griffin eyed a pass to Tom O'Connor with Frank Hogan and Paul Sheedy covering the play on the floor in the Creighton game. Loyola rolled over the Nebraskans twice this season, 67-54 and 59-57.

CHEERLEADERS. Clockwise: Frank Lancaster, Barbara Ross, Jule Swinchart, Marianne Nelson, Bobbie Gormaly, Beverly Wilson, Mary Glenda McDonald, Mary Kay Ball, Rhoda Lesko, Dick Linchan.

and Gold. The 90-60 loss came despite the fine offensive and defensive play of Greg Griffin.

The final appearance of the season at the Stadium for Loyola ended in defeat as the Ramblers, unable to take advantage of the mistakes made by a nationally-rated North Carolina team, fell 76-57. The following games at Detroit, Canisius, and Bowling Green found Coach Ireland's men again occupying the losing column. However, against their traditional rival John Carroll, the Ramblers put on a show of power with Paul Sheedy breaking the all-time scoring mark with 46 points. During the game Loyola fans also saw eight records wiped off the books before the final buzzer sounded, signalling the end of a 127-89 Loyola victory and an 11-13 season.

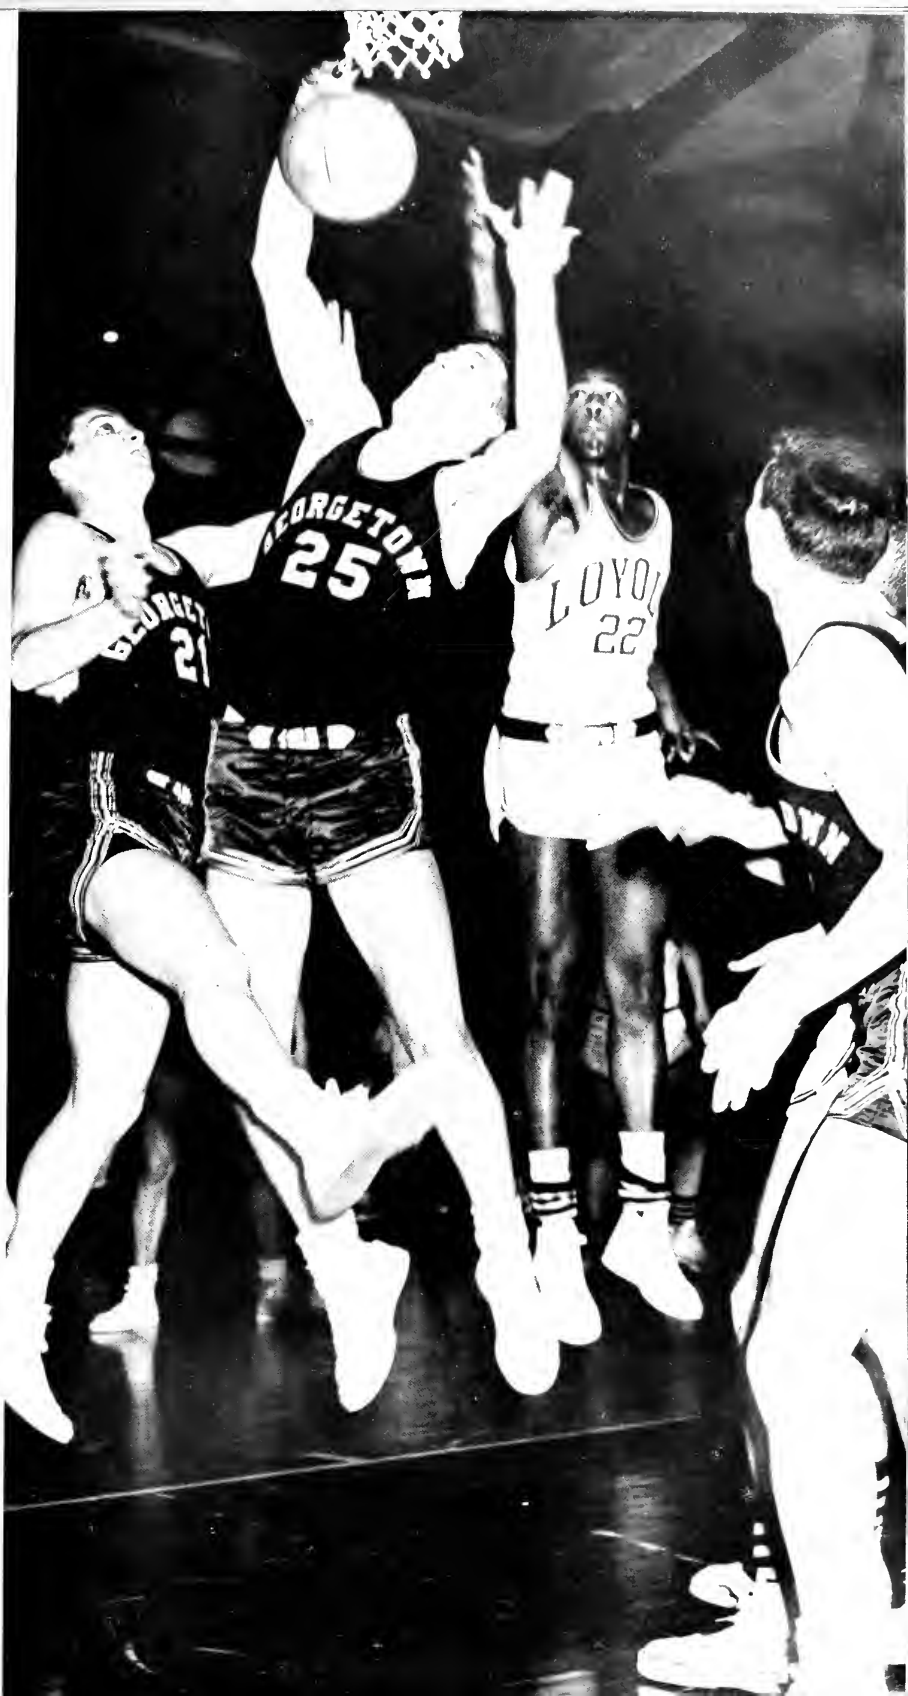

In the final analysis, the record of 11 victories in 24 contests stands up as a fine performance. Towards the end of the season, Coach Ireland started a team of five sophomores and juniors without one of the original season's starters in the line-up. Jim Gorman had an operation performed on his bad knee; Al Norville was confined to bed because of his eye injury; and Paul Sheedy, along with Frank Hogan, missed several crucial games as victims of the flu. The reserves played unexpectedly well but still they lacked the experience to take over the reigns in mid-season. The season had its bright moments and its distasteful moments, but it was still full of hustle and desire, again showing the true determined spirit of Loyola's basketball teams.

Half time — the moments of tense recollection and strong determination.

Half time over, mistakes rectified, determination fortified, play resumes!

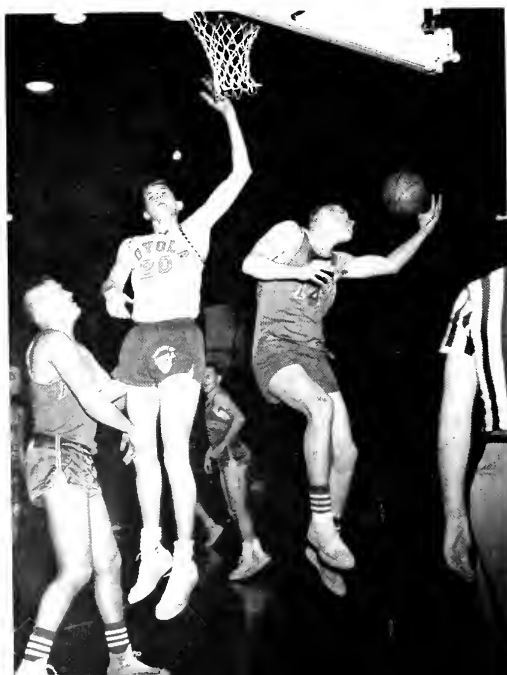

Sophomore phenomenon Clarence Red futilely reaches for the ball in the hands of Tom Coleman of Georgetown. Although hustling during the entire game, the Ramblers were unable to stop the shooting of the Eastern invaders and lost 103-93.

CROSS-COUNTRY TEAM. Lou Kujawinski, Brian Shutts, Ernie Billups, Roy Horton, Norb Slowikowski, Tom Flanagan, Ed Flores, Coach Jerry Weiland.

CROSS COUNTRY

A greatly-improved Loyola harrier squad was unable to keep pace with the tremendous upswing in American distance running standards this year. Along with this rise in competition was the lack of reserve strength which kept Loyola at the minimum of five runners while the track factories of the Midwest were fielding 20-man squads.

On the Notre Dame golf course, against the National Champions and Central Collegiate Champions, Loyola turned in a tremendous team average of 21.24 per man for four miles. (In 1955, a Loyola harrier team covered the same distance in 21:53, in 1956, 21:38, and in 1957, 22:07.) Though four years ago this would have made Loyola one of the top teams in the Midwest, in 1958 it was commonplace.

At the starting gun, Loyola's cross-country runners move out to whitewash Wayne 15-47.

TRACK

Loyola's track team during the 1958-59 season attained a level of success not reached since 1949. Its success stemmed from the outstanding performances of the indoor two-mile relay team composed of Ernie Billups, Mike Burke, Lou Kujawinski, Norb Slowikowski, and substitute runner Brian Shutts.

The addition of hurdler Jim Ashmore, sprinter Hal Brownlee, and middle distance men Joe Shea, Tom Flanagan, Ed Flores, and Jim Bush has given Coach Jerry Weiland a balanced team that has produced dual meet as well as relay carnival triumphs.

The two-mile relay team maintained a fine record of impressive wins by defeating such powerhouses as Michigan, Michigan State, Oklahoma State, Iowa State and Colorado. In the National Junior AAU Indoor Championship at the University of Chicago, this quarter set a new standard with a time of 7:53.6, eclipsing the old mark of 7:58.8 set by Yale in 1951. The outdoor season should also provide this Rambler team with excellent competition against which the Maroon and Gold men will have a chance to prove their outstanding quality.

Ernie Billups returned to competition after a year of illness and proved to be the mainstay and anchor man of the two-mile relay team, covering the 440 in 0:49 and the 880 in 1:53.

Three outstanding senior distancemen of the Rambler track team, Lou Kujawinski, Brian Shutts, and Roy Horton consistently place high in the numerous mile and two-mile events.

Freshman Jim Ashmore, the hottest streak of talent to grace LU track, is a specialist over the high and low hurdles. While a prep, Ashmore was one of the fastest prep hurdlers in the country.

Senior Mike Burke, besides running on the two-mile relay team, last year at the Bradley relays tied Loyola University's 440 yd. record with a 48.8 second performance.

The two-mile relay team of Brian Shutts, Lou Kujawinski, Mike Burke, and Ernie Billups won five straight indoor meets before tasting defeat at the hands of Western Michigan in the Knights of Columbus Relays in Cleveland.

SWIMMING

The 1958-59 Loyola University swimming team finished the season with five victories and seven defeats, as well as a second place in the Chicago Intercollegiate Championship. The record does not necessarily indicate the true strength of the young, inexperienced, but talented squad.

The team, composed almost entirely of freshmen and sophomores and captained by Bob Bielinski, compiled a four and two won-lost record during the first half of the season, including a startling upset over defending champion North Central College in the Loyola Relays. During the second half of the season, however, the team lost four meets in succession. In the last meet of the season the tankers looked as if they were going to engineer their second upset by capturing the Chicago Intercollegiate meet, but a disqualification cost the victory. The nucleus of the team was provided by Bielinski, Bob Barnes, Jim Kelly, Bob Dring, and Len Vertuno. The impetus of the major victories came from the freshmen Peter Trummer, Butch Blau, Bill Bishop, Bill Newman, John Horan, Bill Horan, Dan Schmitt, and Joe Huhn.

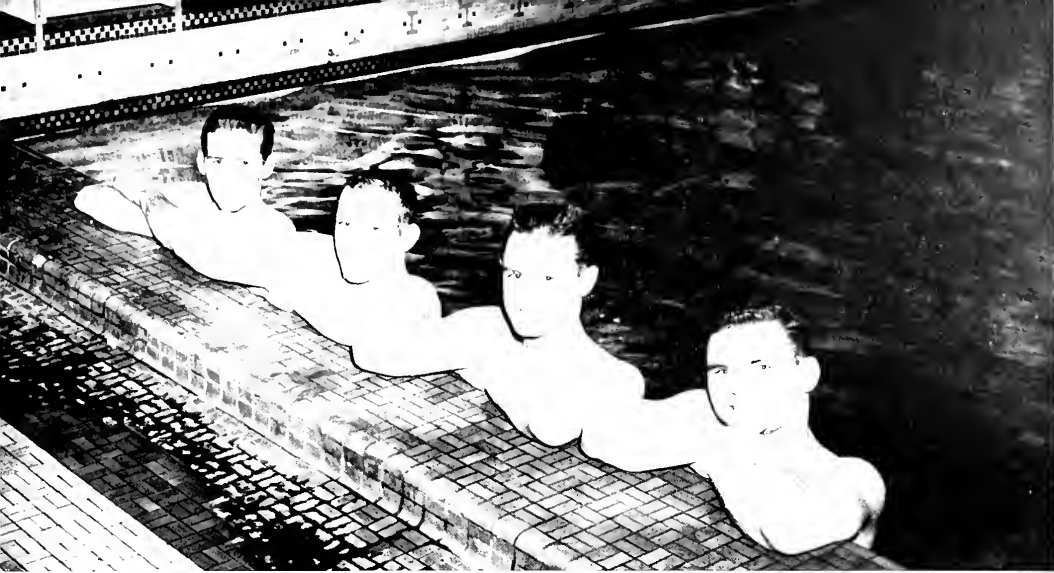

New records were set in the 440-yard medley relay, the 200-yard backstroke, and the 200-yard breaststroke.

Joe Huhn glides through a swan during a warm-up session at Alumni pool. Huhn was Loyola's only diver this season.

Freshman Bill Bishop stretches his hands way back in a beautiful exhibition of the butterfly stroke.

Peter Trummer, the outstanding freshman on this year's squad, set a new university and pool record in the 200-yard breaststroke.

BOWLING

Under the guidance of Coach Charles Greenstein, Loyola's bowling team is acquiring a fine reputation in the Midwestern Collegiate Bowling League.

The young and inexperienced team is led by Jack Brown who in twenty-six games has maintained a 183 average. He is closely followed by Den Suder, the only senior on the team, bowling a 180 average, with the team's high series score of 1010. Bill Shaw, third with a 179 average, has the distinction of having bowled the best game of the season — 244.

The team, which finished in fourth place in the five-team league, picked up momentum at the end of the season and consistently improved in its scoring.

Three members of the Bowling Team show their style on the alleys: Den Suder, Bill Shaw, and Dick Baum.

INTRAMURALS

The intramural program at Loyola's two campuses provides the students with a wide variety of physically relaxing pursuits. Although the programs at LT and LSC vary somewhat, the majority of events are the same: football contests, basketball games, and spring softball.

The LSC intramural program is under the direction of Coach Don Chalmers. He is assisted by Bob Marlin, Bill Pederson, and Jim Kelly. Contests most actively participated in are football, basketball, softball, and handball. Students may participate at any time during the school year in swimming, paddleball, and track.

The most popular event spectator-wise is the annual turkey-trot, won this year by four-time winner George Plum. Observers believe that Plum's record of four wins will never be equalled. The Pi Alphas are again leading the LSC sweepstakes contest, having won the football championship.

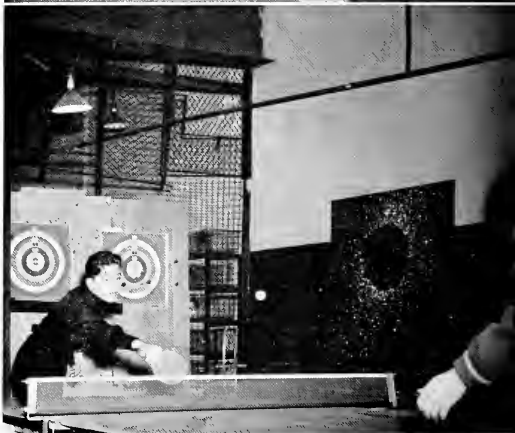

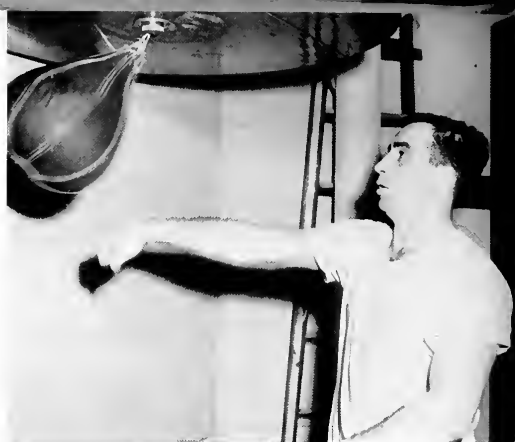

The LT program is under the direction of Leonard Zimny, assisted by John Gobby, Bob Buckley, and John Owens. The major event of the program is the basketball championship, which again seems to be in the hands of the BVDs. Other activities include a dart throwing contest, table-tennis, checker tournament, and the free-throw contest.

Chicago, with its 14,500 factories which produce 21 billion dollars worth of goods a year, is one of the world's largest manufacturing areas. Many, no doubt, of Loyola University's 900 yearly graduates choose careers for themselves within some division of Chicago's vast manufacturing network. Yet no matter what their walk of life, Loyola graduates fulfill an important role as consumers of their city's products. They, and through them Loyola, influence the economic well-being of both Chicago and the nation.

JOURNEY'S END

The current school year now draws to its close. For the seniors it is the journey's end — the conclusion of four eventful but difficult years. Life's stern realities — the business world, the professions, marriage, and parenthood — lie just ahead. For the underclassmen each June marks a milestone in their college careers.

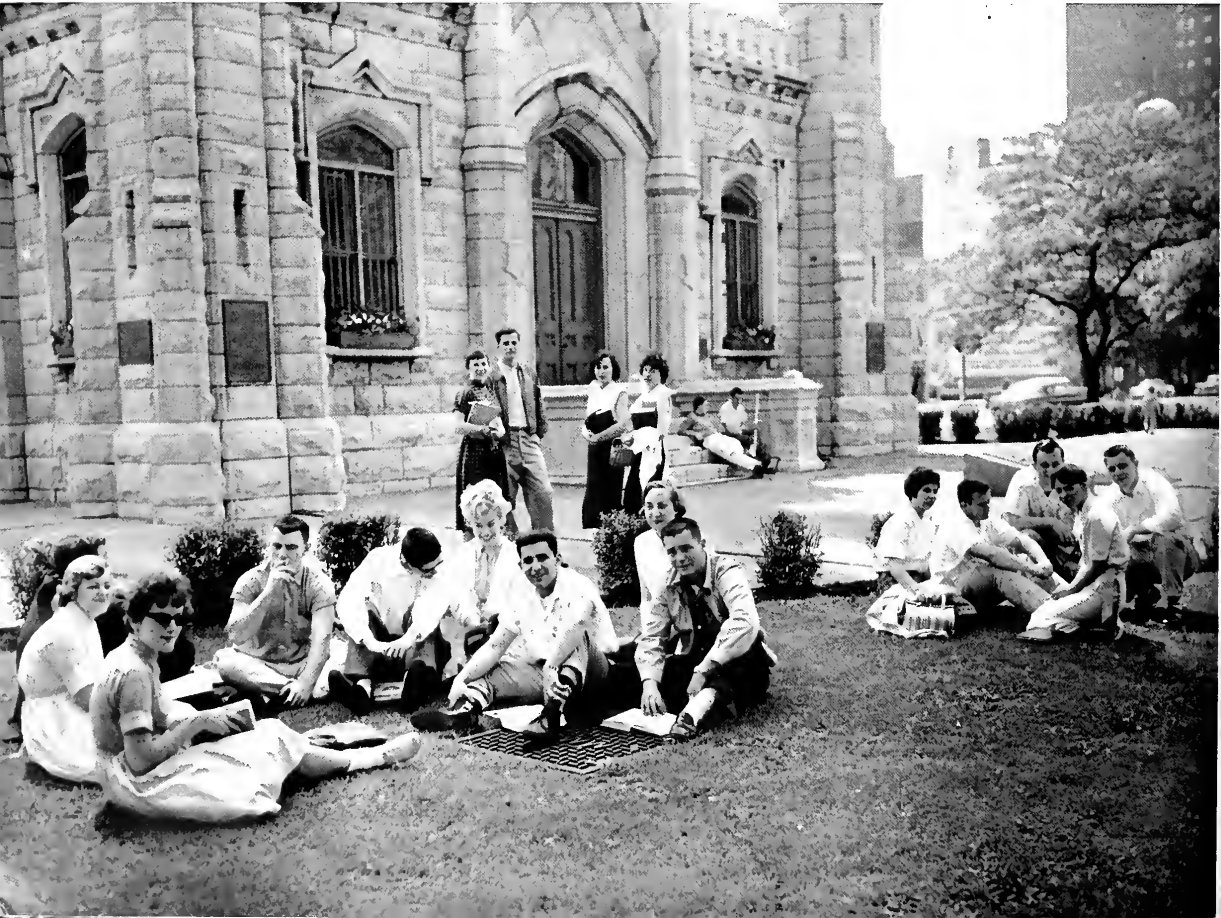

The events of April, May, and June annually comprise the most enjoyable activities and the most memorable months of the year. This was the time of the Loyola Union Fair, comprehensive examinations, honors award nights, recognition days, military reviews, sodality receptions, and the Curtain Guild's annual musical. The memories of "Hell Night" are lost in the pleasures of fraternity inductions and elections. The class elections and the Council elections are finished, and the victors and losers are again friends. How many dances, how many banquets, how many parties were crowded into these last months! Phi Mu Chi's Easter Queenship Ball, Sigma Pi Alpha's Spring Nocturne, the Military Ball, and the Veterans Club's dance were just a few of these many events.

For the senior, however, the month of June was the most memorable of all. This was the time of Senior Week. It began with a picnic in Harms' Woods on Saturday, June 6. On Sunday, June 7, the graduates marched into Madonna della Strada Chapel for Mass and the baccalaureate address. Several hours later they assembled at the Michigan Room of the Edgewater Beach Hotel to toast one another at the Cocktail Party. Then came Monday evening — the night of the glittering Senior Ball in the Guildhall of the Ambassador West. Finally, on commencement day, the graduates gathered in the Granada Theatre to receive their degrees and to be congratulated by their equally happy parents and friends.

The 1959 LOYOLAN in the next eight pages will help you to recapture some of those unforgettable moments.

On the inviting lawns of Lewis Tower's historic campus, students enjoy a brief period of relaxation before taking their final exams.

Gene Callahan receives, on behalf of Pi Alpha Lambda, the Organization of the Year Award from Frank Hogan, president of Blue Key Fraternity.

The R.O.T.C. drill team brought renown to Loyola with its 1959 success in national competition.

Scene from The Major and the Millionaire, Curtain Guild musical. The band sets off from Salvation Army shelter for a great prayer meeting in Albert Hall.

The cast of The Major and the Millionaire beams with pleasure at the applause given their singing of "She Wears a New Look in Her Eyes."

Fathers Lester Evett, S.J., and Joseph Hogan, S.J., moderators, receive new members into Lewis Towers and Lake Shore Sodalities.

Junior nurses on Recognition Day receive navy blue bands for their caps.

At the Recognition Day program, sophomore nurses proudly wear their nursing caps the first time.

Mary Kay Ball, sorority woman of the year, and Frank Hogan, fraternity man of the year, receive their trophies from Tom Brennan at Sigma Pi Alpha's annual presentation dance.

The newly inducted members of Kappa Gamma Pi, national scholastic honorary society for women, are, standing, Christine Nahnsen, Dorothy Feigl, Patricia Kubistal, and, seated, Mary Ann Krol, Kay Cottrell, and Donna Rae Vero.

The Very Rev. James F. Maguire, S.J., president of Loyola, is pictured with the new members of Alpha Sigma Nu, national Jesuit honor fraternity; Sam P. Liaros, Dr. Joseph Cantafio, John B. Nichele, Donald P. Klein, Robert C. Lane, Richard Stalzer, Richard C. Blair, John P. O'Keefe, Peter J. Wagner, Rudolph J. Maier, Richard Donovan, Thomas M. Haney, Kenneth C. Jamison, Paul Davis.

Graduates of 1959 march past the Jesuit residence hall before entering Madonna della Strada for the Baccalaureate Services.

Enjoying the Senior Week cocktail party at the Edge water Beach Hotel are Kay Cottrell, Stella Stasulaitis, Frank Gorecki, George Lempke, Gloria Javor, Jim Dunne, and Marge Rooney.

Highlighting the Senior Week was the glittering Senior Ball at the Ambassador West Hotel. Among those present were: standing, Dan Matuszewski, Carol Friend, Mary Chidester, George Nix; seated, Tom Camden, Barbara Klinger, Dick Miller, Diane Lich, Vince Intrivici.

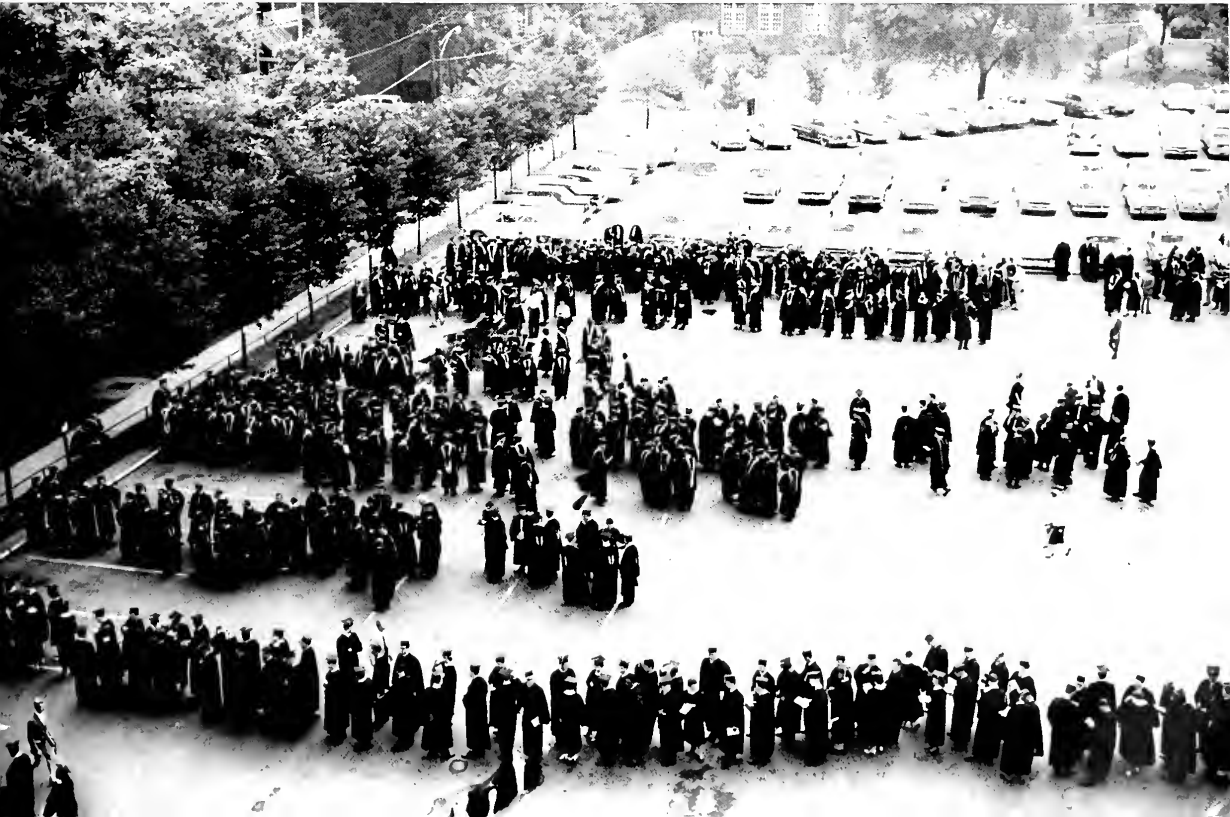

Photographer John Karklin is caught in the act of catching the mirrored splendor of the whirling dancers at the Senior Ball.

Graduates assemble near the university gymnasium before proceeding to the Granada Theatre for commencement.

OUR THANKS

As the last and most pleasant act of the 1959 LOYOLAN, it is befitting that OUR THANKS be extended to all who have been a part of the success of this book. Although it would be impossible to thank everyone by name who has helped to make the LOYOLAN a reality, the following deserve our gratitude for their efforts and encouragement:

The Very Reverend James F. Maguire, S.J., President of Loyola University, who, by his interest, his encouragement, and his generous confidence, is most responsible for the publication of the yearbook.

Mr. Harry L. McCloskey, Dean of Students, who has continually worked to build the LOYOLAN into a tradition on campus.

Rev. Thomas J. Bryant, S.J., our moderator, whose untiring efforts on behalf of the yearbook have been a cornerstone of the book's success. We proudly hail him as the best of moderators and the most loyal of staff members.

Our thanks also go to the following for their cooperation and technical advice:

Jahn & Ollier, our engravers, and especially to Bill O'Connor and John Hancock.

The Graessle-Mercer Company, our printer, and especially to George Graessle and H. Toms Graessle.

Marshall Studio and Benar Studio, our professional photographers, and especially to Tony Comunale.

S. K. Smith Company, our cover manufacturer, and especially to Dick Dwyer.

As to the staff itself, my deepest and sincerest gratitude belongs to Tom Haney, my assistant editor. He has been my right hand, my second head, my co editor, and, above all, my friend. His energy and devotion to the yearbook will always remain in my memory. It has been his book, as well as mine.

John Karklin, our photographer, accomplished the monumental task of taking most of the pictures in the book, with the exception of the senior portraits. His efforts deserve a monumental "thank you."

Our managing editor, Frank Smith, is another to whom the success of the book must be credited. His efforts in organizing and completing the yearbook will always be appreciated.

The task of writing the copy for the LOYOLAN was given to John Lempkowski, our copy editor. The best tribute to him can be paid by saying that his Muse was inspired.

Bob Ryba, our business manager, is most worthy of praise for his efficient and capable management of the financial operations of the yearbook.

Judy Wolfgram and Ed (Whitey) Biesinger, our senior editors, deserve credit for their outstanding work in completing the senior section of the LOYOLAN.

The success of the sports section must be credited to Charlie Vygantas, our sports editor, whose efforts were most appreciated.

And last but not least, my sincere thanks to the staff members listed below who have contributed a major share in the book's success.

W. M. H.

EPILOGUE FROM THE MODERATOR: It is meet and just that as moderator of the LOYOLAN I say a few special words of praise for William Hegan, our editor-in-chief; Thomas Haney, our assistant editor; and John Karklin, our photographer. Without their contributions of work and leadership the yearbook would not have come out. Their efficiency and loyalty were without measure.

On my own behalf and speaking for the student body, I say a thousand thanks to these three gentlemen who have given us an annual of which we are all truly proud.
